In describing the sounds heard from the S-4 at 11 o'clock, officers of the sister submarine, the S-4, said there was nothing to indicate that they were intended for signals. It seemed rather that the imprisoned men were attempting to make noise in their own defense.

The officers said that there was no possible way in which the prisoners could better their condition.

They maintained, and after detailed preparation.

OBREGON AND CALLES ON FLIGHT WITH LINDBERGH

Mexican Executive Enjoys the Experience—Gen. Obregon Also Praises His Pilot.

EXPECTS TO ESCORT MOTHER TO CAPITAL

American Flyer Will Meet Her in the Spirit of St. Louis Outside of Mexico City.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20.—President Calles and former President Obregon today made separate rights with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, American air hero, at the stick of a commercial plane loaned for the trip. President Calles and Gen. Obregon were in the air about 25 minutes each.

The Mexican President, making his first flight, went up first with the American flyer, the plane taking off at 10:15 a. m. and landing at 10:45.

Gen. Obregon, who is the only candidate left in the field for next year's presidential election, went up immediately after the President.

Both President Calles and Gen. Obregon expressed great pleasure in the flight and said that they had complete confidence in the American aviator.

Calles Delighted.

"One doesn't feel any movement; it's even better than riding on a train," President Calles said after the flight. "Col. Lindbergh handled the plane admirably and it's easier to ask about his ability."

Gen. Jose Alvarez, Mexican Chief of Staff, accompanied the President on the flight.

Gen. Obregon was no less enthusiastic than the President.

"I felt absolutely safe," he declared. "Who wouldn't with such a fine pilot."

The former President was accompanied by A. J. McNab, United States military attaché.

United States Ambassador Wright Morrow arrived at the Valencia field during the flights.

Col. Lindbergh later took Ambassador Morrow on a flight.

In all, Col. Lindbergh made seven flights this morning, making trips with American and Mexican newspaper men, members of the United States Embassy staff and others, including Humberto Obregon, son of Gen. Obregon.

Lindbergh expects to fly in the spirit of St. Louis from Valdrona to the United States.

At Xochimilco, Lindbergh completed another triumphant voyage, this time in a flower-decked gondola. The boat was poled through the canals at the average speed of a mile an hour—probably about half the speed the aviator had traveled in many years.

He was taken yesterday to the festival in his honor at Xochimilco or "Floating Gardens," 12 miles from Mexico City.

At Xochimilco, Lindbergh completed another triumphal voyage, this time in a flower-decked gondola.

The boat was poled through the canals at the average speed of a mile an hour—probably about half the speed the aviator had traveled in many years.

Greeted by Welcome Signs.

American and Mexican flags fashioned from flowers greeted him as he passed under the bridges spanning the canals. One sign said in letters formed by flowers: "Welcome from Mexico City's Labor Government to the Conqueror of the Atlantic."

Barefooted Indian girls, Indian men in white cotton trousers rolled above the knees, little Indian children, their arms and legs bare and their black braids tied with gay ribbons pressed about to shower affection upon him as his boat passed.

As Lindbergh approached the island in the center of the network of canals, bands played the national anthems of Mexico and America. As those on the shore roared their welcome, the flyer stood on the prow of his ship waving his hand.

On the island, Lindbergh was the luncheon guest of the Mexico City Municipal Council. At the luncheon table, sat between American Ambassador Morrow and Arturo Saracho, Mayor of Mexico City and official host of the day.

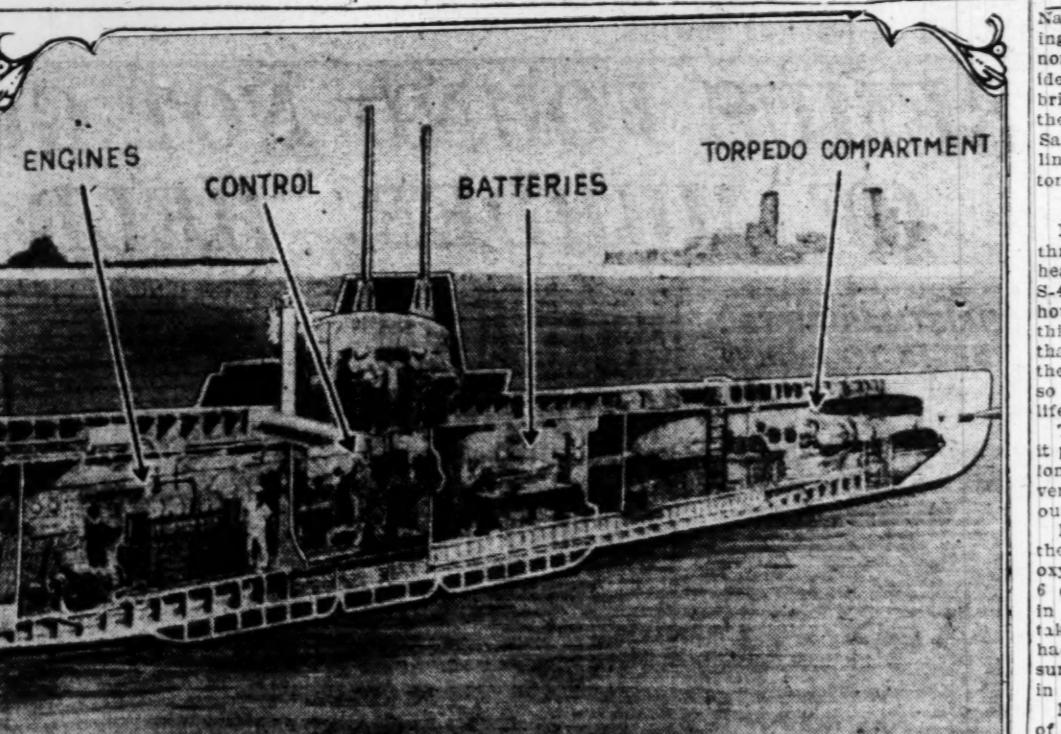

Of his future plans, Lindbergh said: "I would like to go to South America sometime, but have no intention of doing so at present. I must and will conclude my Central American trip with a flight to Havana during the Pan-American conference. I can't fix the date, but it will not be in time for the opening (Jan. 16). Then, as I have said before, I will fly home to St. Louis."

Concerning his entertainment Sunday, he said: "I found but fighting very interesting."

MOTHER OF FLYER DELAYED 4 HOURS

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 20.—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh arrived here at 10 a. m. today from St. Louis on her flight from Detroit to Mexico City to meet her son, Charles A. Lindbergh. The monoplane was refueled and took off at 12:15 for Tulsa, Okla. A crowd of several thousand persons greeted

Diagram of Interior of a United States Submarine; Three of Six Believed to Be Still Alive in Sunken S-4

THE torpedo room of a submarine runs aft from the nose, as indicated, to the bulkhead separating it from the battery compartment. It was from the forward compartment of the S-4 that Lieut. Fitch signaled yesterday that he and five men still lived. Fitch is the center figure below. On the left is Torpedoman Roger Leslie Short of Booneville, Mo., and on the right Torpedoman Frank Snizek of Ridgefield Park, N. J., also imprisoned in the torpedo room.

Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the trans-Atlantic flyer, who was to have resumed her 9 a. m. today, was delayed in the takeoff from Lambert-St. Louis Field more than four hours by the stripping of an engine starter gear which necessitated a replacement.

The big tri-motored Ford monoplane journey to Mexico City at which, which she is making, a journey with five companions, finally took off at 1:05 p. m. Pilot Harry Brooks of the Ford Motor Co. staff announced before he took the air that he expected to land at Springfield, Mo., for fuel but probably would continue to Tulsa, Okla., where the party plans to spend the night. Prior to the delay, Brooks had intended to jump to San Antonio, Tex., to night.

TWO MEN FOUND SLAIN; BODIES LASHED TOGETHER

Wrists Tightly Bound With Rope—Discovery Made Along Galena, Ill.—Chicago Highway.

By the Associated Press.
GALENA, Ill., Dec. 20.—The bodies of two men tied together, were found in Tapley's wood, eight miles east of Galena today.

Indications were that they had been murdered last night. Sheriff Kennedy of Dubuque, Ia., identified the bodies as those of Ray McGrath, 32 years old, and Claude Tiberghien, 34, both of Dubuque.

Both men had been shot to death.

The four wrists of the dead men were closely bound together with a strand of heavy, new rope. They were lying along the right-of-way of the Ga.-Chi.-Chicago hard surface highway.

Both McGrath and Tiberghien were married, the Sheriff said.

The Sheriff and others from Dubuque said the men were in the Iowa city last night. McGrath was going to Galena to meet a man from Chicago. McGrath, Tiberghien and a Stanley Trustee of Chicago recently were in jail at Manchester, Ia., for violation of the prohibition laws, according to Kennedy. Tiberghien, the Sheriff thought, was still in jail.

Man's Body Found in Creek.

LINN, Mo., Dec. 20.—Officials of Osage County are endeavoring to learn the identity of a man whose body was found late Sunday under the ice in a creek near Chamois, about 12 miles north of here. Skaters discovered the body just beneath the ice. Apparently the man had built a fire near the creek and leaped into the stream when he clothe caught fire and was drowned. His clothing had been burned in a number of places.

Given Total of Deeds.

Before he left the witness stand today, Moore said that the dealings between him and Hornsby had stopped for the period December, 1925, and March, 1926.

The sum, he said, was $327,995.

HORNSBY ON STAND AS DEFENDANT IN SUIT FOR $36,230

Frank L. Moore Reduces Amount of Claim for Money Advanced From $45,075 Total.

SAYS $327,995 IN ALL CHANGED HANDS

Baseball Player Says $4930

Horse Race Bet, Made in His Name, Was for Plaintiff.

Robert Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants and former manager of the Cardinals, took the witness stand before Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton today in defense of a suit which Frank L. Moore, Cincinnati bookmaker, desired was based on transactions between them totaling $327,995, between December, 1925, and March, 1926.

Moore, a former intimiate friend of the ballplayer, had sued for $45,075, alleging that Hornsby had that amount for unsuccessful horse race bets which Moore had made good for the second plaintiff.

Before Hornsby took the stand, however, Judge McElhinney whittled down the amount of the bet by sustaining demurrers to two counts wherein Moore sought to collect $3345. The evidence given by Moore was that he gave that amount to Mrs. Hornsby for bets placed by her, and lost, on behalf of her husband. The court held Hornsby was not liable for money given his wife.

was employed as a messenger until six months ago, when he was arrested. He was given a preliminary hearing and pleaded guilty in Superior Court. Police said he admitted forging nearly 40 checks. He admitted that he had traced the signatures from checks entrusted to his care to take from bank to bank.

Autopsy and Inquest.

An autopsy held on the child of the child was decipherable. The name "Marian" was found on a blotter as if the blotter had been used after the name was penned on paper.

Stains were found in the bath tub and in the bathroom, giving rise to the possibility that the girl may have been killed there.

The inquest was adjourned by the court to the girl's home.

SLAYER, 23 YEARS IN PRISON, GETS PAROLE

Theodore Otto, Convicted of St. Louis Murder in 1904, Freed for Christmas.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 20.—Theodore Otto, 51-year-old convict who has been in the Missouri penitentiary longer than any man now within its walls, is to spend this Christmas at liberty. His parole, effective Friday, was announced today.

Otto, who killed Frank Langley in a fight at Ninth and Olive streets in St. Louis on Feb. 5, 1904, will have served 23 years and 10 months of his 50-year sentence when he is released. He is paroled to Mrs. Maud Clark, a prison welfare worker, of Kansas City.

Three other paroles were announced today, to be effective in time to let their subjects to home for Christmas—Lloyd Goodwin, 26 years old, drug-store manager, sentenced to 10 years in St. Louis County Circuit Court for assault to kill, is to be paroled after having served less than eight months of his time.

The parole was recommended by J. L. Howell, general attorney for the Terminal Railroad Association; the Rev. William B. Lampe of 5872 Maple avenue and A. M. Roblee of 5333 Maple avenue. He is paroled to Roblee.

Hidden paroles were granted to Cesar Henderson, 28, a Negro, sentenced to 15 years from Calaway County for murder, and Napoleon B. Pardue of Ray County, sentenced to a life term for an offense against a woman. Henderson has served six and a half years and Pardue more than 11.

$36,000 NEBRASKA ROBBERY

By the Associated Press.
NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. Dec. 20.—Two men held up the Nebraska City National Bank yesterday, locked six people in a vault and escaped with between $50,000 and $80,000 in cash and approximately $30,000 worth of Government bonds. The robbers were unmasked but heavily armed.
The bank cashier, Otto J. Schneider, opened the vault from the inside. The robbers were out of sight, however, by the time the six had gained their freedom, however.

ALDERMEN IN ROW
AFTER ACQUITTING
WALDMAN AND NEU

Schwartz Asks Counsel for Twenty-Eighth Warden,
'Is There a Sincere Bone
in Your Body?'

IRKED BY REMMERS' PRAISE OF CLIENT

Wimer Cries Out Against Rosenblatt in the Gallery
—President Neun Pounds
for Order.

Harsh words flew about the Board of Aldermen chamber last night in the trial of Alderman Herman C. Waldman and John Neu Jr., who were acquitted by their colleagues of the charges of being conduct. Waldman by an 18-8 vote and Neu by 22 to 4.

Oliver T. Remmers, counsel for Waldman, first introduced the upbraiding note, when he sought to place on Waldman's son-in-law, Mort J. Rosenblatt, the blame for the circumstances which brought the Twenty-eighth Ward Alderman under suspicion in the service car drivers' escrow fund affair.

Waldman's "Fault Abused."

"Mr. Waldman's fault is his son-in-law's fault," Remmers declared, after outlining the escrow agreement by which Rosenblatt was to get $300 or more for "certain legislation" for the service car men.
Rosenblatt has said he was to turn the money over to Attorney H. G.
Cohen as a fee.

"Mr. Waldman was discussing his plan for a service car ordinance
with everybody," the lawyer continued. "He talked with city officials,
the Chief of Police, United Railway officials, and naturally with his son-in-law also. And these two young men, Rosenblatt and Cohen, took a gamble. I have no proof of it, but that's what I think."

"They did a bungling job. They didn't consult Mr. Waldman. They made an agreement that the money
should be payable within 90 days after May 1. And then Mr. Waldman did not introduce his bill until May 10, and made no effort to get it passed before the summer vacation.
The two young men just took a long chance, and got nothing out of it."

Remmers then explained his own reason for appearing in the case.
Some persons, he said, had advised him to keep out of it, because of his position as chairman of the Republican City Committee, but he felt that he owed a duty to his friend, Waldman, an old client. And he proceeded to extol Waldman as a business man and a public servant.

Schwartz Challenged Remmers.

Alderman Wilbur C. Schwartz arose, frowning ominously, and pointing a finger at Remmers.

"I want to ask you some questions," he announced. "Is there a sincere bone in your body? Didn't you tell me last year, in the private session, that Herman Waldman wasn't fit to be Alderman, and neither was I, and that you wouldn't support either of us?
What are you getting up now and praising him for? A fee?"

President Neun's gavel crashed, and the sergeant-at-arms moved to a position between Remmers and Schwartz.

"You needn't get between us," Schwartz scoffed. "He isn't coming this way."

Calm was restored for a time,
but presently Alderman Stoll Wimer saw Rosenblatt in the gallery and rose to a point of order.

"What is that fellow doing in this chamber?" Wimer demanded loudly. "He ought to be at home hiding his face."

Rosenblatt remained, however,
and moved to a seat where the Aldermen could see him more plainly.

Outcome of Trial Foreseen.

The outcome of the trial was forecast when the aldermen decided to open the session earlier in the day to use it as the chief evidence, the typewritten transcript of the recent hearing of the special investigating committee which inquired into the service car matter.
The committee had brought out some suggestive facts, but not a sufficient body of evidence for a legal conviction.

The aldermen, who have the right under the Charter to expel a member for cause after a hearing,
were not bound by rules of evidence so strict as those of a court.
But Attorney Remmers objected and excepted in a manner which indicated that he would ask for a court review in case of an adverse verdict. It was announced that a two-thirds vote of the entire board would be required to convict. This meant 20 members, as President Neun was counted as a twenty-ninth member of the board, and voted on the verdicts.

Nothing but the record of the committee's inquiry was introduced in Waldman's case. The testimony had been mostly the recital of service car drivers as to their efforts to get legislation, and the negotiations with Rosenblatt, who conducts an automobile mortgaging company. This resulted in an escrow agreement filed with the National City Bank, and relating

COURT RULING REFUSED
ON OKLAHOMA DISPUTE

Judge Holds, However, That Johnston Is Still Governor in Fact.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Dec. 20.

—Efforts to take the question of validity of the Oklahoma Legislature's self-called impeachment session before the State Criminal Court of Appeals failed yesterday. Subpensas were issued for 20 administration leaders who have opposed the session, ordering them to appear in District Court today to give depositions.

The Criminal Court of Appeals declined to issue a writ of habeas corpus to R. E. Wentz, who challenged the right of Gov. Henry S. Johnston to order him returned to Little Rock, Ark., to face a charge of embezzling a diamond ring. Wentz' attorney, David Tant, had argued that Gov. Johnston was automatically suspended last week by the acceptance of House impeachment charges by the Senate. He contended that despite the fact the Senate had voted specifically, not to suspend the Governor until he was brought to trial, the State Constitution made suspension mandatory.

Presiding Judge Thomas H. Doyle refused to entertain Wentz' arguments. He held that even if the acceptance of the Senate's bill had served to suspend Gov. Johnston, he still was Governor in fact, since there had been no effort on the part of Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Holloway to assume the office. Judge Doyle's view was subscribed to by the other two members of the court.

Gov. Johnston Subpoenaed.
Subpensas were issued to Gov. Johnston; all members of the State Supreme Court; Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the Governor's confidential secretary; J. R. Armstrong, counselor to the Governor, and Mrs. Hammonds' uncle, and a number of administration employees, ordering them to appear in District Court today and give testimony relative to the present situation.

The issuance of subpensas to administration followers was a counter-move on the part of S. P. Freeling, former Attorney-General, retained as counsel for session leaders.

ALDERMEN IN ROW

to a fund which was intended to reach $1200, but which never was more than $300. That amount was withdrawn and paid back to members after the agreement fell through.

One witness before the committee, Andrew Utterdorfer, said he had seen an agreement which was signed by Waldman, but there was no other testimony to the existence of any such paper, and the bank officers said they had not seen it. Otherwise, Waldman's connection with the agreement, as far as shown by the testimony, was only by inference. Waldman's denial of any knowledge of the escrow agreement was also read.

Associate City Counselor Field, acting as prosecutor, said the Aldermen must judge whether Waldman knew, when introducing his bill, of the agreement into which his son-in-law had entered. The conclusion, he said, must be either that Waldman did know of it, or that Rosenblatt was trying to make something out of it for himself. Mr. Cohen, Remmers replied to this with the eulog of Waldman which drew Alderman Schwartz's fire.

After a 20-minute executive session, the board announced its decision in Waldman's case at 9 p. m. Waldman thanked the majority, and said he hoped to gain the confidence of the others. Then it was Neu's turn.

In Neu's case, witnesses were called, Utterdorfer being the first. Here there was a different set of circumstances. Neu had not been a party to the escrow agreement, but had learned of its existence last summer when the drivers engaged him as their lawyer. He had advised the drivers to "can" the agreement, but had not at the time told his fellow-aldermen of the matter. Neu received $164 from the drivers' organization, which he said was for his services in aiding them to organize. The formal charge against him was that, "while pretending to be employed to render legitimate services" to the organization, he was in reality employed to prevent the passage of Waldman's bill, which one faction of drivers opposed.

Drivers testing to the fee paid to Neu and some $40 it had been estimated to him $750 ultimately. All said the services rendered were in forming a new organization, and drawing up constitution and by-laws, except that one witness, Lester Watts, said Utterdorfer told him that legislation was to be obtained through Neu. Utterdorfer himself did not testify to that effect, and Watts' statement was objected to as hearsay.

Neu made a statement in his own behalf, saying he had not opposed the Waldman bill, except as to a bonding provision, and that an amendment to that respect had been prepared. He told of his meeting with Waldman before the legislative committee in October, which precipitated the inquiry, and he said he then told of the escrow agreement, as he thought it, his duty to do so.

Arguments in Neu's case were brief, Verne R. C. Lacy speaking for Neu. Another brief executive session, and the acquittal of the Thirteenth Ward Alderman was announced at 11:40 p. m. He expressed his thanks, and urged the members of the board to protect each other from slanders from which, he said, no one is safe.

The board held a brief and formal meeting, and adjourned at midnight over the Christmas holidays, to meet Jan. 6.

GOVERNOR SEEKS COMPROMISE ON ROAD BOND ISSUEWrites Matthews Who Favors $60,000,000 and Britton Who Wants
Double That Sum.CALLS ON BOTH TO "GET TOGETHER"Urge Them to Present a United Front on Whatever Proposal They Offer
the Voters.By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 20.— Gov. Baker this afternoon urged a compromise between the $120,- 000,000 additional road bond issue, advocated by the Automobile Club of Missouri, and the opposing one of $60,000,000, backed by the State Highway Commission, almost on the eve of separate conferences of the two groups in St. Louis tomorrow to discuss their respective proposals.The Governor wrote letters to C.
D. Matthews of Siloam, chairman of the State Highway Commission, and Roy A. Britton, president of the Automobile Club, urging them to "get together" on a basis of mutual concession, and to go before the voters on a proposal with a united front.

Baker's Suggestion.

Gov. Baker's statement comes after it had been indicated he would take no part in the dispute.While the Governor's letter to Matthews said he was "just throwing out a suggestion," it will have considerable weight with the commission, according to the criticism that the administration has a part in the commission's sudden recommendation of the $60,000,000 proposal,
thereby ignoring the $120,000,000
proposal of the Automobile Club.
Gov. Baker said, "I simply mentioned to the commission that I felt that the commission should make a recommendation to the people.""You have done this," the Governor continued in the letter to Matthews, "but it would be extremely hazardous to the road
program for two propositions to go before the people with a united
front, with a proposition that would easily go over.""There may be a disposition on the part of some to compromise in a way to get what they want. However, I believe that all real friends of the road program would be interested in a real compromise and I believe that if you and Maj.
Britton who is at the head of the Automobile Club of Missouri would get together, that you would be willing to give and take and go
before the people with a united
front, with a proposition that would easily go over.""I am just throwing this out as a suggestion, and the same letter is being sent to Matthews. I believe that the people of the State have sufficient confidence in both you and Maj. Britton that whatever you would decide upon would have considerable weight. If I can assist in any way in bringing about this compromise, do not hesitate to call upon me."Compromise of the differences
was urged here yesterday by State Senator A. T. McCawley of Carthage, chairman of the Senate Roads and Highways Committee of the 1927 Legislature.Members of the Highway Commission plan to meet in St. Louis tomorrow to discuss details of the $60,000,000 proposal. It is understood the Automobile Club
is to have similar conference
about that time on the $120,000,- 000 plan."A division between advocates of the State highway system endangers completion of the system," Senator McCawley said. "I think no program could be adopted that does not have the joint support of the Highway Commission, the Automobile Club of Missouri and those who are most desirous of a system of fast-to-market roads. It is to be hoped these forces speedily
will reach a basis of agreement.
Two propositions on the ballot will almost certainly result in defeat of both."VATICAN UNDERSTOOD TO BE

ment Considered Reason for

ROME, Dec. 20.—Unconfirmed reports are in circulation here that an indirect attempt at negotiations between the Holy See and Mexico is being made.This is held to be the reason why in yesterday's allocution at the secret consistory, Pope Pius did not mention the situation in Mexico,
which arose when the new religious laws went into effect.So far there is nothing official

HEARST REPLIES TO OPEN LETTER OF SENATOR NORRIS

Says Nebraskan Refrained
From Telling Truth in His "Hysterical and Vituperative Statement."

INSISTS MEXICAN PAPERS ARE GENUINE

Publisher Denies Motive
Was to Reflect on Insurgents—Declares He Is One Himself.

Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—W. R. Hearst last night issued a statement in reply to an open letter from Senator Norris of Nebraska regarding publication of documents by the Hearst newspapers. The statement says in part:

"It is not necessary to reply to Senator Norris' hysterical and vituperative statement in kind."

"I might state, however, that if Senator Norris is anxious to establish the truth, he might begin by telling the truth, a thing that he is distinctly refrained from doing throughout his whole statement."

Says Documents Quite Authentic.

"The plain facts of this whole Mexican matter are that these Mexican documents are apparently quite authentic, and that no proof whatever has been produced of their lack of authenticity."

"I might have, in the first place, refrained from publishing any of the documents, in which case, my possession of the documents being known, I would eventually have been accused by persons as careless of facts as Senator Norris, of having been too cowardly and too concerned for my property interests in Mexico to have revealed facts through the medium of my newspapers, which affected the welfare of the American people, and that the American people had a right to be acquainted with."

"In the second place, I might have printed some of the documents and suppressed others, in which case I could have been accused of suppression of the facts or perversion of the facts to suit my prejudices or opinions."

"In the third place, I might have interviewed the Senator mentioned and published their explanations in my newspapers, but I could not see, and cannot now see, how denials made in my newspapers would have any superior force or effect over denials made by them under oath before a governmental body."

Explains Deletion of Names.

"Moreover, such a course would have necessitated the publication of the Senator's name, and I was in no way adequately informed as to the probable course of the Government, and as to whether it ever would be considered necessary or desirable by the Government to make public the Senator's name."

"Therefore, I mentioned no individuals, but I merely printed the documents deleted of names, and left the determination of that important point for the Government."

"It was only when the authenticity of the documents became almost overwhelmingly established that publication began."

"It is true, as Mr. Norris said and as I told the committee, that I have property valued at approximately $1,000,000 in Mexico, which I had possessed in peace and security through the friendship and favor of the Mexican Government."

"Certainly nobody, but the Mexican Government, Senator Norris is not that—at least, not a perfect one—could imagine that my property holdings were benefited by losing the friendship and favor of the Mexican Government."

"As a matter of fact, in publishing these documents, there was no probability—in fact, the near certainty—that these properties would be confiscated at the earliest possible moment by the Mexican Government."

Always Supported Insurgents.

"Finally, as to the alleged evil motive in endeavoring to reflect upon the insurgents in the Senate through the publication of these documents, that seems to me to be the most asinine statement that can be picked out of Senator Norris' scrap heap of misrepresentations and bunglings."

"My papers have always been in the main, supporters of the insurgent group of Senators."

"As a matter of fact, I am an insurgent myself, and have always been and always will be an insurgent against whatever seems to be contrary to the interests of our government and the welfare of our people, and in sustaining those principles and that policy I published these Mexican documents, believing them and believing now that I did my simple duty, regardless of consequences to myself and considering merely the best benefit of the American people."

CONGRESS ALLOWS $8,000,000 FUND FOR U.S. BUILDINGS

Appropriation Is First of $165,000,000 Program
Projected for New Federal Structures.

AMOUNT INCLUDED IN DEFICIENCY MEASURE

Legislation Up to President for Signature — House Approves $290,000,000
Budget for 10 Years.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Both the House and the Senate have approved and sent to the White House a deficiency supply bill carrying, among other items, slightly more than $8,000,000 for the initiation of the first year's work of the administration's public buildings program, which ultimately will provide for new post offices and Federal buildings in many cities. The projects received a 12-months' setback due to the Senate filibuster last session.

Practically all of the projects to be cared for under this appropriation were authorized in 1913, and since that time have been awaiting the attention of Congress, which was diverted first by the war.

First Part of Program.

The $8,000,000 appropriation is the first of the $165,000,000 public buildings act authorized last session. In addition, the budget bureau has recommended to Congress an appropriation of several million dollars to start construction next year on a number of other buildings in various cities. The appropriation awaiting President Coolidge's approval will be available immediately upon his signing of the deficiency supply bill.

Besides these measures, the House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate bills to authorize appropriations of $125,000,000, to increase to $290,000,000 the total amount to be made available during the next 10 years. For the first five years of this period, $35,000,000 is to be appropriated annually.

$75,000,000 for District.

After that the remainder of the total fund is to be appropriated in such amounts as required to provide for the completion of various projects.

The $75,000,000 is for the District of Columbia, and the remaining $125,000,000 is for projects throughout the states.

Representative Reed. (Rep.) New York, supported by Chairman Elliott of the Public Buildings Committee, introduced the bill to authorize the appropriation of $125,000,000 of which $100,000,000 was allotted to new construction throughout the states and $25,000,000 for the District of Columbia. The measure, as approved yesterday by the House, was a duplicate of the bill which failed of passage last year in the Senate.

Democrats Oppose Program.

The only opposition that has developed to the public buildings program has been from Southern Democrats, who contend that Congress, rather than the Treasury and Post Office Departments should determine where the new buildings are to be located.

The views of this group of Southern Democrats were summed up yesterday in the House by Representative Hodges (Dem.). Although he declared the bill would vote against the bill because, while it would help a lot of members, it would provide nothing for his district.

Representative Bushy (Dem.), Mississippi, also announced he would oppose the measure because he thought Congress was delegating to a department a part of its own rights.

CHICAGO LOSES GRAIN TRADE

TO ST. LOUIS, WITNESS SAYS
High Freight Rates on Wheat Attract Business to Missouri Points,
He Tells I. C. C.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Shipments rates on wheat and coarse grains from Kansas and Nebraska have been so great that Chicago and Minneapolis have been replaced as grain centers, while Kansas City and St. Louis have developed. J. S. Brown, manager of the Transportation Department of the Chicago Board of Trade, testified before an Interstate Commerce Commission rate hearing here yesterday.

"Chicago was the undisputed grain center a short time ago, but railroad shipment rates have been such that wheat and coarse grains from Kansas and Nebraska tend to move to the South and Southeast, to Kansas City and St. Louis, rather than to Chicago or Minneapolis," Brown said.

Chicago and Minneapolis need lower shipment rates from Kansas and Nebraska to balance the more favorable location of Kansas City, St. Louis and Omaha, Brown declared.

TO PROPOSE U. S.
PAY IN FULL FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Chairman Reid of House Committee Will Introduce Plan Tomorrow Understood to Favor Policy.

COOLIDGE WOULD HAVE STATES SHARE

View of Senator Hawes Before Senate in Resolution Backed by U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.

20-23 Wyatt Bldg.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Chairman Frank R. Reid of the House Flood Control Committee announced today he would introduce tomorrow a preliminary resolution outlining the committee's plan for flood prevention on the Mississippi River. While details of the resolution are being withheld pending final action, it is understood that the measure will advocate a policy of "100 per cent Federal Government participation" without attempting to go into the technical difficulties of flood control or its cost.

Similar resolutions have been introduced in the Senate by Chairman Wesley Jones of the Commerce Committee and Senator Harry B. Hawes (D-Conn.), chairman of the billion-dollar "Missouri plan" for flood control. These, together with the expected Reid resolution, are opposed to the administration plan whereby local communities would pay 20 per cent of the cost of flood-control works. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States also has gone on record in favor of the Federal Government assuming the entire responsibility for flood control.

Heads of the House committee will be continued Jan. 5, to get data for the final committee bill.

The first witnesses to be called will be Secretary of War Davis, Secretary Hoover and Major-General Edgar J. Prugh, chief of army engineers, author of the administration's program.

COOLIDGE WORKS FOR PRINCIPLE.
President Coolidge feels that while the question of local contribution in the Mississippi Valley flood control project is inconsequential as far as the money is concerned, the principle involved is important. The President was represented today as feeling that contributions from the states interested, even on the small basis recommended by army engineers, would insure the desire of those states to see that the flood control work was carried out efficiently and economically.

He has received no figures as to what the probable cost to the states of acquiring lands as sites for flood control works, but he has been informed by the engineers that this probably would not be a very serious matter so long as it was handled locally.

JORDAN STARTS EASILY
IN ZERO TEMPERATURE

Starting equipment has been given a lot of attention this year by the leading automotive and electrical engineers, with a view to eliminating the old difficulties so often encountered in winter starting.

Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co., relates a very interesting story of how his engineers tested the new Air Line Eight motor, under the most extreme conditions.

One of the new cars was placed in a special "cold box" and left there for 24 hours, with the temperature standing at 11 degrees below zero.

Then the engineers armed with stop watches, entered the cold box and started the motor in just five and a half seconds.

According to Jordan, it's just a question of using a large enough battery, a large enough starting motor and the proper carburetion.

Attorney Indicted.

KING CITY, Mo., Dec. 20.—Clayton W. Allen, attorney, was indicted by a special grand jury yesterday at Albany, Mo., on a charge of attempting to corrupt a witness. The indictment grows out of testimony which was introduced in cases against Curtis Williams on a charge of mail fraud and bank robbery which resulted in a disagreement of the jury last Monday. Miss Lotte Bounds testified that Allen had attempted to get her to testify to certain facts that were not true and had told her there would be some money in it for her if she did. Judge Dawson called a special grand jury to investigate the charges. Allen gave $100 bond for his appearance at the March term of the Gentry County Circuit Court.

Burglar Calls Victim Beautiful.

Mrs. John Hinman, 5283 Washington boulevard, an artist, left home yesterday morning to go to her studio, 5579 Parkway. When she returned home at 4 p. m. she found the rooms ransacked, $60 worth of jewelry taken and $200 damage done to clothes and photographs. She found this note on a trunk: "You weren't here, but I saw your photograph. You're beautiful."

Man Next Door to Murder
Scene Says He Got $25 a Month and Liquor.

Member of Old St. Louis Family, 55, Had Been Ill for Several Weeks.

The moonshiners in the house at 2100 Sublette avenue, where Samuel Patti was shot to death Sunday night paid "security money" to their neighbor next door, it developed at the inquest today, which resulted in a verdict of homicide at the hands of unknown parties.

Hugo Schössel, 2102 Sublette avenue, testified Patti and a short stock Italian, about 40 years old,
known variously as Gus and Charley, were "carteers" of the house, who had carried on a still and three basement vats.

"You knew they were making moonshine there?" asked Circuit Attorney Siedner.

"Yes, I knew."

"Did they ever threaten you?"

"Well, I got my rent paid. There was lots of noise and smell next door, and they wanted me to keep my mouth shut."

Schössel's rent was only $15 a month, but the moonshiners paid him $25 a month—"security money" he called it—and also left a bottle of liquor on his doortop whenever he requested.

"It was as good as you can get these days," said the witness, referring to the liquor.

Schössel's brother-in-law, Frank
F. Schössel, testified he heard shots fired at 2100 Sublette and saw a short stocky Italian run
from the back yard into the house.

"I followed him in—I was drinking or I wouldn't have done that," Schössel said.

Once in the house, Schössel added, the Italian lifted a trap door opening into a vat, directed a flashlight down, then crawled out in Italian and ran from the house.

Schössel surmised someone had been murdered and thrown in the
vat. He summoned police, and Patti's body, with a bullet wound in the back, was found in the rear

Police are seeking a man known as Gus, alias Charley, for questioning.

"MEN TOOK ME," CHILD SAYS
Says Landing (N. J.) Boy Found
Half-Frozen After 27-Hour Search.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 20.—Three-year-old James Branco, who was found unconscious in the woods near his home in Cardif yesterday after a 27-hour search, has developed pneumonia, but is expected to recover. He may lose the toes on his left foot, all of which were frozen. Dr. Allen Relck said.

The child's father, Charles Branco, said James had mumbled, "Some men took me." The child disappeared shortly before noon.

Mountain Sheep Have Pneumonia.
By the Associated Press.
HELENA, Mont., Dec. 20.—Mountain sheep in the Glacier Park and Big Horn districts are contracting pneumonia, says Dr. H. L. Marsh, pathologist for the State Livestock Sanitary Board. He believes the disease menaces survival of the herds.

INJUNCTION AGAINST LEASING OF BIG FOUR DISSOLVED

Decision Removes Federal Court's Objections to New York Central

Taking Over Railroad.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 20.—Federal Court objections to the lease of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis (Big Four) Railroad by the New York Central were removed yesterday when District Judge Smith Hickenlooper dissolved an injunction imposed upon the New York Central in October, 1926.

The New York Central—already controls the Big Four through stock ownership.

The injunction originally was granted in District Court upon the request of John D. Jackson, Hamden, Conn., minority stockholder of the Big Four, who declared the proposed 99-year lease was detrimental to the interests of minority stockholders.

The order restrained the New York Central from voting its majority holdings in the Big Four in favor of the lease. The District Court of appeals, however, reversed the lower court. It declared the injunction a hardship on the two companies and asserted Jackson could present his objections to the lease when the roads sought approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Made Shoes for 65 Years.
By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 20.—After serving four generations of Lexington citizens Charles H. Chittum is retiring. He is still able to carry on after 65 years of making boots and shoes and repairing them, but "simply wants a change."

Moderate Drinking Declared Healthful

Cornell University Professor Says Use of Alcohol Increases Resistance to Disease.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Drinking in moderation is not only unharful to health and longevity but a positive benefit, Dr. Charles R. Stockard, professor of anatomy at Cornell University, declared last night while reading a paper upon the effects of alcohol before 200 physicians of the Medical Association.

The alcohol consumed by a moderate drinker, he explained, increases the resistance to disease, despite the general impression to the contrary, and drunk after the age of 30, experiments have shown it has no effect whatever upon length of life. Excessive consumption of alcohol, Dr. Stockard said, was admittedly injurious.

The impression that the consumption of alcohol in any quantity was injurious to health and shortened human life, he said, can partly be traced to the insurance companies' statistics on drinkers and non-drinkers, which heavy, moderate and occasional drinkers are lumped together. The heavy drinkers, he said, drag down the average of the others so that the total effect seems to indicate that abstainers have a better chance of life and health than drinkers.

Dr. Stockard in the last 17 years has conducted experiments with alcohol upon more than 5000 guinea pigs. He concluded, he said, that alcohol not only did not harm the pigs when fed regularly but that it actually benefited them and increased their life span. The experiments of other scientists bear him out, he added.

Alcohol also has positive benefits as a food and as a drug, he said, citing technical uses of alcohol as a drug, and declaring that as a food alcohol may help and stimulate growth and bodily development.

Dr. Stockard closed his paper with a plea for regulation of alcohol, so that the excesses of heavy drinkers should not deprive the moderate drinker of alcohol.

BROD AND ALT TESTIFY AS TO BUCKINGHAM ANNEX FIRE

Grand Jury Investigating Disaster
in Which Seven Guests Lost Their Lives Dec. 5.

Fire Chief Alt and Director of Public Safety Brod were summoned to testify before the grand jury as it began an investigation of the fire in the east wing of the Buckingham Hotel Annex, Dec. 5, in which seven guests lost their lives.

Director Brod and Chief Alt have said the hotel management lived up to all the existing ordinances governing fire precautions, but they added that the construction of the old building made it dangerous. Guests slept even though it was equipped with fire escapes and window ropes and kept clear of rubbish.

SHIP SINKS IN GALE; 5 LOST

Irish Collier Wrecked; 3 Liners Delayed by Storm.

By the Associated Press.

CORK, Ireland, Dec. 20.—Battered by furious seas on the rocks near Old Head of Kinsale last night, the collier, Pearl of Gloucester, has broken up with the loss of her Captain and four members of the crew. The storm is sweeping the Irish coast.

The inward-bound liners, Baltic, Andania and Republic, were battling tremendous seas today. They were due here yesterday morning, but their officers have advised port authorities they will not arrive until tonight.

DR. E. W. SAUNDERS

With a ready smile Dr. Saunders made friends easily with children.

He was 73 years old, and never married.

Patients at Bethesda Hospital and inmates of the allied institutions will today hold services in memory of their patron, who died yesterday. Tomorrow morning, at Memorial Presbyterian Church, University City, funeral services will be held. The body will be sent to Lexington, Campbell County, Va., for burial beside that of his mother.

The Board of Directors of Bethesda, of which Dr. Saunders was president, will choose a new executive at a future meeting. Meanwhile H. H. Reinhardt, vice president and secretary of the institution, and Mrs. Roger Hayne, director and treasurer, will direct the institution. The Board of Directors includes M. F. Watts, Dr. Mary C. Clegg, Dr. W. J. Johnson, Dr. Leslie Almon, Dr. C. E. Burford, Arthur Surridge and Mrs. Cary Weisinger. Walter H. Saunders, a brother of Dr. Saunders, is junior counsel for the institution.

RAPID TRANSIT
DEAD, SURFACE
ORDINANCE ALIVEAlderman Wimer Thinks It Futile to Move to Consummate His Plan for Subways.SHAPLEIGH TO SEE MAYOR AFTER JAN. 1They Will Discuss "Serviceat-Cost" Measure Giving 30-Year Franchise to Street Car Line.Rapid transit seems to be in a thrash if not moribund state at City Hall, while the proposal for a 30-year franchise for surface transportation still is a live issue.Alderman Samuel L. Wimer, chairman of the special committee on rapid transit for the Board of Aldermen, which drafted a complete plan for subways last year, said today that there was no interest in the plan now and that he had reached the conclusion that it would be futile to move toward its consummation.Myer Miller made known that
A. L. Shapleigh, president of the St. Louis Public Service Co., had asked for a conference shortly after Jan. 1 on the so-called "serviceat-cost" ordinance by which the company seeks to be franchised
for street car lines.

Wimer's Two Bills.

Wimer, at the beginning of the present session of the Board of Aldermen, announced his intention to present two measures to the board. One was for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the proposal to rechristen
the city as "Quad City" and whether the city should buy the surface lines as a preliminary toward rapid transit.He failed likewise in his attempt to control the development
of the graduate college, and to keep it in close co-operation with
the life of the university proper.
Here, more than in the "Quad
struggle," he had to contend with
the power of money. Not money-
seeking dominance for purposes of
gain, but money given, in the main
unselfishly, by men who wished
to direct it toward to which it should be spent.Mr. Wilson was elected president of Princeton in June, 1902,
and was inaugurated in the following October. Soon he was asking the alumni and wealthy friends of the university for large gifts, in part for the establishment of a preceptorial system like that of the English universities, and involving the addition of 50 tutors
to the faculty.

Put Through Plan for Fund.

The time was unpropitious for adding to the university's endowment, but a plan for an emergency fund, to install the preceptorial system, was put through with the support of leading trustees: Cleveland H. Dodge, David B. Jones, M.
Taylor Pyne, Cyrus H. McCormick
and others. In the later conflicts, Dodge, Jones and McCormick were
supporters of President Wilson
while Pyne was associated with Grover Cleveland in support of the program proposed by Wilson.A complete reorganization of the courses was placed in effect in 1904, and the addition of the pre-ceptorial staff of 47 came in the fall of 1905. President Wilson's desire was to get away from the old system of lectures and quizzes,
and instead of finding out what a student knows, to determine what he does not know, and put him in the way of acquiring it.President Wilson continued, adding new professors in the major faculty positions, and obtaining two needed resignations from the Board of Trustees by the simple process of demanding them directly from the university.

Buried in Committee.

One of President Wilson's ambitions for Princeton, expressed in his inaugural address of 1902, was
"a notable graduate college, to be built not apart, but as nearly as may be at the geographical heart of the university." The graduate school already existed, and a wide range of power had been given by the trustees to its dean, Andrew West. A temporary home for the graduate school was sought by West, and a residence property known as Merwick, a short distance from the campus, was obtained in 1905.In the following year, after portents of disagreement over the course of the graduate college,
and other questions pertaining to it,
had begun to appear, Dean
West received a call to the president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. President Wilson joined in urging West to remain at Princeton, and this was subsequently a matter of criticism.

Mayor Opposes Referendum.

"What is the status of that ordinance?" the Mayor was asked."Mr. Shapleigh has asked for a conference on it shortly after the first of the year," the Mayor replied."Will it be the same ordinance
as originally proposed?""I do not know. That ordinance
was printed and distributed to interested persons. It seemed to me that we were about to meet approval when we were about
ready to pass it. Then protests against it began to appear.""Have you any separate plan for rapid transit?" the Mayor was
asked."What could I do? As I understand it, I have no authority in the matter."Woodrow Wilson's Stormy Years
As University President Told
In Second Volume of BiographyRecord of Late President's Efforts for Reforms at Princeton One of Defeat, as Reviewed by Ray Stannard Baker.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

WOODROW WILSON's years of storm and stress, in the presidency of Princeton University, are described in the second volume of the two-volume set of "Woodrow Wilson—Life and Letters—Princeton," by Ray Stannard Baker. The first volume of the pair is a record of the former President's early life and his student days. Doubleday, Page & Co.
are the publishers.The record is not one of victory.
It is one of defeat and disappointment. At the university, as later in the wider field of international affairs, Woodrow Wilson strove
for ideal which others were not ready to adopt.Of three major objectives which he placed before the university, President Wilson was successful in attaining only the first. This was the reorganization of the faculty and introduction of the preceptorial system, a change of the scholastic life of the institution.

Some of His Failures.

In what the author of the book calls "the Quad struggle," an attempt to absorb the social life of the university into the academic life, and to lessen the luxury and snobbery of student clubs, President Wilson met failure.He failed likewise in his attempt to control the development
of the graduate college, and to
keep it in close co-operation with
the life of the university proper.
Here, more than in the "Quad
struggle," he had to contend with
the power of money. Not money-
seeking dominance for purposes of
gain, but money given, in the main
unselfishly, by men who wished
to direct it toward to which it should be spent."Greek letter fraternities," the author continues, "had been repressed by the firm Scotch hand
of McCosh; but in their place, imposed little social clubs had sprung up. Wilson himself as a student had belonged to the Al-gators. Presently they began—the Ivy, too, to perpetuate themselves as permanent organizations. There was nothing vicious or underhanded in the movement; it was a natural development. They built beautiful homes and Prospect avenue, the home of the clubs, became a show place."To 'make' a club soon became one of the supreme concerns of lower classmen. During the spring campaign leading up to 'bicker
week,' legitimate university work was all but forgotten. The last of the struggle of clubs, Wilson felt that, as he expressed it, 'the sidewalks were swallowing up the circus.' Most of the thoughtful elements from students to trustees agreed with Wilson on the realities of the evils."

Sought to Restrict Clubs.

At the trustees' meeting in December, 1902, Mr. Wilson presented his plan for meeting the situation.
He suggested that the university be divided into colleges,
and that the strong upper class clubs become colleges under the guidance of the university. In the later conflicts, Dodge, Jones and McCormick were
supporters of President Wilson
while Pyne was associated with Grover Cleveland in support of the program proposed by Wilson.Incidentally, the 100,000,000-gallon concrete box reservoir at Stacy Park, half way between the plant and the city, has just been completed. The 17-mile pipe line connecting the plant to the reservoir
and the city mains was finished
some time ago.Director of Public Utilities Pritchard took a Post-Dispatch reporter on an inspection of the plant and they scrambled over the structure from top of the steep coal conveyor to bottom of the pits. The power unit has become the first to meet a visitor's eye. Beautifully simple in design, its walls are constructed of heavy limestone with thin steel.

Mechanical Stoking.

Chemically treated water will enter the tops of the filter boxes
for the last stage of purification and settle down through sand and gravel for removal of the last dirt. It will be drawn out through perforated pipes at the bottom of the boxes. The last of 1500 cubic yards of gravel, in four different sizes, is being dropped into the boxes by laborers now. On top of this 2000 cubic yards of sand is to be poured to complete the filter. This sand and gravel filter will last many years.

Washing the Filters.

There are concrete gutters crossing the boxes at intervals over the top level of the sand. Periodically, as the deposit of dirt in a filter
becomes large, the flow of water will be reversed, to go from bottom to top, thus washing the dirt into the gutters and away into sewers. Water used in the washing process will not go into the city supply.In the east wall is a great square hole for connection of the smoke
breaching to the 235-foot stack which is to be erected. On the third floor, adjoining the bunker,
is a large room for the air pre-heater, which will utilize waste gases to raise temperature of air
fed to the furnaces, thereby producing more complete combustion.An endless-chain conveyor on the ground floor will carry ashes
to an elevator at one end for easy loading of railroad cars. A machine shop also is provided for on this floor.The factory divided on the question. Dr. Henry Van Dyke and Dean West leading the opposition Presently Dr. John Orlon Hibben, who had been one of the closest friends of President Wilson, joined the opposition. A break in the friendship of Wilson and Hibben occurred, the former being a non-member of the faculty."Will it be the same ordinance
as originally proposed?""I do not know. That ordinance
was printed and distributed to interested persons. It seemed to
ready to pass it. Then protests
against it began to appear.""Have you any separate plan for
rapid transit?" the Mayor was
asked."What could I do? As I understand it, I have no authority in the matter."

lonely stretch of the erratic Missouri River. The main channel was on the St. Charles County side, separated from the St. Louis County chute by sandbars and Islands.
Corr fields extended from the St.
Louis County bank to the Rock Island Railroad, at the base of the bluff. St. Louis selected the site for its new waterworks and a transformation began, which will culminate in 1929 with the completion of an ultra-modern pumping and purification station beside a controlled channel, surrounded by an attractive city park.The first task was to shift the channel a mile, from one bank to

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight the cause of all parties, never be true to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Lindbergh Committee Asks for Support. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

R EPLYING to the letter "The Lindbergh Fountain," written by May Price Allen, will say the achievement of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the first nonstop flight from New York to Paris was of such historical importance that the Spirit of St. Louis Memorial Committee was organized for the purpose of commemorating that event, not only for this, but for future generations.

Historical events of importance, from the early Republic to the present time, have been immortalized in enduring form, and it was with that idea in mind that the committee, after very careful consideration, decided on the nature of the memorial to be erected.

The committee most earnestly asks for the support and good wishes of every citizen of St. Louis and vicinity, and it feels sure that when the fountain is completed, the beauty of which will depend on the sum to be received by the committee, and stands as a lasting tribute to the flight of Col. Lindbergh, that thankfulness will be expressed for "The Spirit of St. Louis."

MRS. JAMES H. McCABE, Chairman.

Mr. Sherman's Review of the Goossens Concert. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MUSICAL criticism in these parts, hammering about symphony concerts through a mouthful of personal likes and dislikes, orchestral accessories and waded floral offerings—all as readable and important as the lists of who wore what at a wedding—has suddenly swallowed.

Fine musical awareness, soberly digested impressions, intelligent analysis and, happily, an ability to articulate—made Mr. Sherman's review in last Saturday's Post-Dispatch as lucid as the concert he reviewed. It will have a prominent place in Mr. Goossens' scrap-book of press clippings.

VICTOR PROETZ.

Adendum. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHILE I have no desire to carry on a controversy with Charles M. Hay, I do wish to add this word to the discussion about crime and prosecution in St. Louis. I obtained, and believe others obtained, from published accounts of an address by him, the impression that the prosecution was being criticized because only 564 warrants were issued against 13,444 crimes here. Statistics of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice show that of these 13,444 cases only 1420 were presented to the prosecuting authorities by the police, and warrants were refused in 456 cases, leaving the 964 warrants issued. I am glad to be corrected in the point that Mr. Hay said 13,444 crimes and not that many arrests in his speech, but insist that he was not laboring under the impression that he said only 964 arrests. May we drop the matter, without reference to prohibition? R. G. B.

WHY not create a fund by popular subscription for the erection and maintenance of the world's largest beacon and name it in honor of our friend "ambassador?"

For it to operate it will always be in abundance to those who complete the proposed hydro-electric project in Central Missouri. A fund sufficiently large should be raised not only to buy the beacon and pay for operating it, but also to add new equipment as it becomes available in the future.

St. Louis people and people everywhere who are friendly to Lindbergh should have the privilege of helping to create the grandeur of the ages reposed. Take a large cake of Rube Goldberg who I am confident, can diagram a process for solving the mystery and shattering the obfuscations so that the blinded mortal will know when to pause and when to pause not. That he will be able to read the darned thing, if you know what I mean. LIMOUSINE.

Mexico is Free. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE will now place the names of the four United States Senators and all the publications that have fought for the freedom of Mexico upon the scroll that has kept as evidence that God is good.

For Mexico is free! Even the would-be despilers of that great country have joined with its faithful defenders by pronouncing the fact, as if their names should head the list.

NORRIS ON HEARST.

Not even Mr. Hearst, with his twenty-six newspapers and numerous monthlies, can lightly injure the good name of George W. Norris of Nebraska, the doughtiest member of the United States Senate.

The reputation of the Nebraska Senator, his sturdy character, his nonpartisanship, and his straightforwardness, are in themselves a sufficient answer to the forged Mexican documents which Hearst first published in his papers and is now trying to defend before a Senate investigating committee. What Hearst has done no member of the Senate would think of doing. Most of those men have at times disagreed with Senator Norris; some of them have clashed with him in bitter parliamentary combat; but none ever ascribed to him a dishonorable motive or weakened his cause by intimating that Senator Norris is not honest.

It took Hearst to do that, and he is already answering for it. The Senator has buried at the publisher a 3500-word letter in which his judgments are scathing. To Senator Norris the Hearst motive in the matter of the Mexican documents, which allege that $1,215,000 in bribes was paid by Mexico to Senators Borah, Norris, La Follette and Heflin for their friendly attitude toward her, was to involve the United States in war with that country. To Senator Norris it is quite "sinful" what has come out in the Senate investigation that to have his way in a controversy with Mexico over her new land laws the publisher would involve the peoples of both countries in all the terrible consequences of armed strife.

This is hard!—a lighter blow than the one aimed at Senator Norris by Hearst. It is not impossible that an individual with Hearst's immense publicity powers could involve the two countries in war. Few powers have had such an impetus, nor is the motive imputed to him beyond the country's experience with Hearst.

The simple fact that he would blanch the names of the four Senators with a story which he says he did not believe himself shows how journalism has been degraded in his hands. That he would not give these men an opportunity to defend themselves before he published charges that had come to him through the hands of men who represented themselves as thieves, but who probably were forgers, is outside the bounds and practices of journalism everywhere except in the Hearst offices.

There is one point in the Norris letter which ought to convince anybody. It is that Mexico does not want to bribe men like Borah and Norris to win their support. They belong to a group in the Senate which is delighted to help the under dog. The sympathy which every oppressed nation commands in their breasts is beyond price, nor could an undeserving Mexico buy it. The Mexicans would be fools to pay a million and a quarter dollars for something they already have and have "d" from the time when Hearst himself was one of their friends.

No more asinine story was ever told, as no more fantastic fiction was ever invented. If Hearst is not ashamed to have impugned the good names of these men, beside which to their type all else is trash, he should be ashamed that his professional judgment of what is credible is so bad as it is.

And wouldn't that sink a lot of sanguine expectations in the big-navy clique!

AMBASSADOR OF GOOD MANNERS.

Col. Lindbergh went to two bullfights. That is his answer to the busybodies who tried to persuade him to insult a country and a people that have recognized him with every hospitality and homage.

It is an excellent answer—just about the best possible, and as such might be called typically Lindberghian. For this young man is the eighth wonder of the world. His experience is, of course, without parallel. Never was another youth so tested by the adulation of the crowd and the deference of the mighty. He has acquitted himself incomparably. He has never come within radio distance of a faux pas. If anywhere under the shining sun there is an individual who needs neither a social nor a moral circumspect, Lindbergh is that man.

It is fortunate, beyond compute, that this unique American eagle should have been endowed with such a wealth of talents. He has needed them all, and never, perhaps, was the need greater than in the present instance. An occasion which, it is hoped and believed, will prove a landmark in the relations between Mexico and the United States, might be foiled by the miserly counsel of officious incompetence.

Lindbergh has already been commissioned as the Ambassador of Good Will. We presume to confer another distinction—Ambassador of Good Manners.

Since Hearst has such a passion for public documents, we will no doubt be glad to publish the public document addressed to him by Senator Norris.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

One would have thought that the State Department had its hands full of all the trouble it could care for. But such an assumption would have been far wrong. With our Nicaraguan venture becoming daily more odorous, President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg still have the hardihood to go to the Pan-American Conference, which will meet in the Pan-American Conference, which will meet in Havana, on Jan. 18.

That they may thus be letting us in for a double dose of trouble there can be little doubt. The Latin Americans are not coming to this conference to engage in the trivialities which have characterized so many of their former gatherings. They are determined to discuss our imperialism without quibble or soft words. Our conduct toward Nicaragua and Mexico and in the Tucan-Africa affair is apparently destined to be handled without gloves by antagonists who have crossed the border line between offense and glory of the name which it will carry.

WILLIAM MAGLEY.

That Mysterious Sign. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THESE are stop-and-go signals at Lindell and Euclid. Have you by any chance been driving north on Euclid lately? Then do it and see if you don't agree with me. For I have a remedy for that dim, obscure, recondite sign on the side of the great sign of the ages reposed.

Take a large cake of Rube Goldberg who I am confident, can diagram a process for solving the mystery and shattering the obfuscations so that the blinded mortal will know when to pause and when to pause not. That he will be able to read the darned thing, if you know what I mean. LIMOUSINE.

THE PUNISHMENT FOR CRIME.

Public reaction has, on the whole, been favorable to the suggestion of Gov. Smith of New York that punishment in felony cases should be fixed, neither by Judges nor juries, but by a special board of experts. This board would be made up of psychiatrists, psychologists, penologists, lawyers and representatives of the lay public.

The subject was discussed at some length in the Sunday Post-Dispatch. The most interesting comment was that Senator Baumes, famous as the author of the laws that make imprisonment for life mandatory for a fourth conviction for felony, which laws have made crime a hazardous profession in New York and have driven professional criminals to other states. Mr. Baumes correctly says that the question is at present academic. He points out some of the obvious difficulties in the selection and the functioning of such a board. He sanely observes, too, that the jury system, by and large, works fairly well, properly directing attention to the fact that one "fool verdict" arouses a public indignation that blinds us to the average competence of jury findings. The striking feature of Mr. Baumes' analysis is that the proposed board would be a "new court for examining and sentencing." That necessarily would be its status. Of necessity, too, we should think, this new court's judgment would be final. From it there would be no appeal. Otherwise it would be another cog in the complicated and creaking machinery of justice.

That public opinion is ready for this innovation is, we think, unlikely. Yet public opinion must be impressed by the fact that so experienced and able a public servant as Gov. Smith comes forth as the sponsor of this idea. Mr. Smith is not a visionary. He is pre-eminently a realist. And the great significance of his suggestion lies in the fact that he believes our criminal jurisprudence is seriously defective and officially essays a remedy.

In taking this position Gov. Smith is in the excellent company of eminent jurists, at the head of which is Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme Court and of lawyers and publicists of the caliber of the late Herbert S. Hadley.

TAXES AND WARSHIPS.

One obvious reason why Mr. Coolidge does not think the Treasury surplus will be as large as Congress seems to imagine is that there must be money available for the new $700,000,000 naval program. It is not known what period so much construction would require. The popular estimate is from five to ten years, but in submitting the program Secretary Wilbur did not venture a suggestion.

Possibly Congress is not taking the program into consideration because it has no intention of launching upon any such prodigality for naval armament. The country will not spend $700,000,000 for new naval craft in the next 20 years unless Congress says so, and it has not yet said so.

Indeed, if we may judge by the way the House has enlarged the scope of the tax cut, Congress is saying plainly enough that it has other uses for the Government's surplus than those proposed by Mr. Wilbur and his government board.

And wouldn't that sink a lot of sanguine expectations in the big-navy clique!

BUTCHERY IN CHINA.

How you feel about butchery depends to some extent on how close it is to you. It is difficult to visualize, for example, the horror of what is happening in China even when we are told that in Canton there is a reign of terror with Chinese being shot by the hundreds. These Chinese are Communists, who have fallen into disfavor since the nationalist movement collapsed. It is evident that the working arrangement between China and Russia was imperfect and abortive.

From the outset everybody recognized that China, which is singularly lacking in political genius, was unpropitious ground for the Bolsheviks. The old bromide that China is not a nation, but a civilization, should have warned the Russians that it is foolish to attempt to build upon the loosely-jointed Chinese governmental structure such a complex edifice as Bolshevikism.

Even if the Chinese had been receptive to the idea, the Russians would indeed be optimists to suppose that the Western Powers would not intervene. The Powers grabbed China a long time ago and have been consolidating their positions ever since. Sooner or later most of the important Chinese generals like Chang Kai-shek were bound to yield to the enormous pressure of the Western imperialists.

What we are witnessing now is the aftermath of a conflict already decided. The Powers, having crushed the nationalistic movement, are now seeing that the rebellious ones are properly punished. It is a ghastly sight but no one who knows China is either puzzled or surprised by it.

DR. SAUNDERS.

The quality that made Dr. Edward Watt Saunders so rare a human being and such a valuable member of the community is revealed in a note written by him six days before his death. He expressed the wish in that note that there be no waste of money on his funeral and that friends who desired to send flowers should instead give the money to Bethesda Hospital.

Bethesda was Dr. Saunders. For 33 years he gave his time to it with passionate devotion and until he drew his last breath it was the most important thing in life. There are countless tales extant of the manner in which Dr. Saunders sacrificed himself for the sake of the institution which he founded, how he turned back into the hospital his own surplus earnings, how he kept it alive by breathing into it his own vital spark.

His death causes a sense of sorrow and loss among literally thousands of persons. He represented the finest flowering of the medical profession. An indefatigable student, a saintly character, a man of boundless faith and tireless energy—in these clumsy, inadequate phrases we try to recapture the essence of the man.

Since every court in the blooming British Empire has decided against him in this tax suit, including the King's Bench Division, there is nothing left for Harry Payne Whitney to do but to take an appeal to Big Bill Thompson.

Oh, yes, it takes all kinds of people to make a world; all kinds of people—and Hearst.

THE EVOLUTION OF HEARST.

From the Dayton Daily News.

THE one scrap of Cicero which remains to us from a laborious, youthful struggle with the classics is that opening sentence of his pestiferous Cataline how he is going to "abuse our patience." The news from William Randolph Hearst tempts us imitatively to slant that inquiry at the father of yellow journalism. Mr. Hearst tells us that his candidate for president is Andrew Mellon.

Mr. Hearst, how could you! Secretary Andrew Mellon was born March 5, 1854. If he were elected President, he would be within the week of 73 years old on his inauguration day. Charles E. Hughes has just renounced the presidency on the ground of his age. Mr. Hughes is nearly 10 years younger than Mr. Mellon.

Mr. Hearst is spoofing. No man in his senses could be seriously proposing to lead the presidency on a man who would have to become an octogenarian to round out his term. Mr. Hearst is spoofing, or else he goes crazy. In defense of Mr. Hearst we prefer to believe that he is spoofing.

How extraordinarily different a Hearst is this year's supporter of Andrew Mellon from the year when he was a boy. He knew then.

Hearst first came to notice a little over 20 years ago with his radical New York Journal shouting defiance of "Wall Street" from the very sidewalks of Wall Street. The Andrew Mellon of 1896 was Mark Hanna. A memory which no one who was alive and interested in politics in 1896 will ever lose is the Davenport cartoons, "Dollar Mark" Hanna.

While Davenport, drawing for Hearst, was riding the dollar mark over the 1896 Mellon, Arthur Gobright, writing for Hearst, was doing the same thing with words which Mr. Hanna sprang about with such masterly skill. Of one thing Mr. Hearst and his two able assistants proposed to be sure, The American people were never to be bowed beneath any cross of gold. Labor must be free. Not dollars, but manhood, must rule America. With such persistency and power did this triumvirate present the cause of "the poor and oppressed" with such strength did they use the pretensions of the arrogant Mark Hanna that Mr. Hearst became a popular idol among the people, the self-admitted friend of the poor.

"Now, my friends, in conclusion, I want to warn you that plenty of money is being spent. I have saved you millions. I have fought for you people. I am going to fight for you from now on. I can't hire anybody. I can't pay anybody. I want you to tell the labor people that if your labor votes are for sale I want you to help me out a little, and let's not disappoint them. Let's do what's right in time. Let's get our friends together and when they come with the money, take the money, put it in your pockets—send back for more—and then on the day of the election go to the polls and vote like you damn please."

Of Making Many Books JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Half Century of St. Louis

ST. LOUIS REFERENCE RECORD. By W. A. Kelsoe. (Von Hoffmann Press, St. Louis.) Mr. W. A. Kelsoe, who has been actively engaged in St. Louis journalism for the past 55 years and is the author of the editor of the old St. Louis Republican, here shares with the general public a portion of his rich experience. The character of the book is well described by the subtitle "A Newspaper Man's Motion Picture of the City When We Got First Bridge, and of Many Other Happenings of Local Note."

Mr. Kelsoe states that he began work on his Record about eight years ago, evidently intending to limit the volume to the 12 months beginning with July, 1874, when the Eads Bridge was dedicated. But it is clear that he found his memory of that time too vital, and involving too many subsequent developments to admit of limitation to the span of a single year, half a century ago; and accordingly there is an appendix almost matching the original record in volume. Thus the interest of the book is greatly increased, for it is from its relation to the living present that the past takes life.

It is surprising to note how much man and human stuff Mr. Kelsoe has snatched to pack into his book of 10 double column pages. Such a work might easily prove dull reading, however valuable it might be for reference. But this reader found the book a pleasant one to browse in. It is not only that the subject matter itself is interesting, but that the whole time-scape of 50 years, if one may call it so, is viewed with a kindly understanding as through a mellow light.

An exhaustive index renders the great store of information readily accessible.

The book will be on sale at department stores tomorrow.

THE WEALTH OF THE SEA. By Donald K. Tressler. (Century Co.)

"A popular presentation of many interesting facts concerning the production, nature and uses of the great variety of commercial products of the sea," such as jews, ornaments, buttons, perfumes, tortoiseshell, foods, condiments, chemicals, oils, fats, waxes, glues, elements, fertilizers, leather, sponges, whalebone, etc. It is obvious that a comprehensive discussion of the industries through which this sea wealth is produced would involve much romance. The author is a member of the Mollie Institute of Industrial Research.

PROPOSE LINKING THE WABASH IN NEW WATERWAY SYSTEM

By Associated Press.

VINCENNES, Ind., Dec. 20.—Thomas H. Adams, Indiana editor and a group of Vincennes men propose a new lakes-to-the-gulf waterway project.

"The Indiana plan of river transportation and waterways," as it is termed by the sponsor, contemplates the connection of a canal in the Wabash River from the point where it empties into the Ohio River to a site near Huntington, Ind., then the use of the Little River as a canal to connect at Ft. Wayne with the Maumee River, which extends to Lake Erie at Toledo, O.

It also is suggested that the Wabash be connected with Lake Michigan by a canal dug from Lake County (Ind.) to a point near Duluth, Ind.

What we wonder, would happen if the proposed Tunney fracas were to be settled definitely in the new meeting?

Lindbergh is to fly to Nicaragua, probably to convince the people that at least one American plane is not a bombing plane.

ART GALLERIES ON GRAND CENTRAL ROOF

Wealthy Men Support New York Institution With Cash, Artists Contribute Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—In the heart of New York, over the greatest network of railroad tracks in the world, there are 15 quiet rooms where the noise does not penetrate, and there is a city's peace of black-and-white mixture where signs and "snow" pile up to faded, but these are known only to the initiated summits. The lower East Side also maintains a few dingy speakeasies where they "roll a lurch"—that is, rob a drunken customer.

But the days of hell-roaring wickedness have spent themselves. Scarlet ladies rarely patrol the pavements. What vice is left for public display is gilded. It flourishes in the tapestry elegance of night clubs and grand apartment houses, check by jowl with respectability.

Walter L. Clark was the business man of a New York theater, who obtained the financial support of other wealthy men and women, discovered the rat-infested attic of the Grand Central, and won the help of the New York Central Railroad in renovating the space.

"The galleries," explained Clark, "are financed by approximately 150 influential American citizens and are under the direction of seven nationally known business executives. The idea is to operate this organization at no profit to any one except the artist and to manage it on a business basis."

Only living American artists may take a membership in the galleries, and a selecting board of artists nominates and votes upon the works to be exhibited. A sales organization takes care of the selling with a margin of profit to provide for the cost of upkeep.

The 150 lay members contribute $600 a year for three years, and the 150 artist members contribute a work of art a year for three years. At the annual drawing each lay member is entitled to select one of the artist's contributions, and in many instances the donor obtains work which would sell for well over $1,000.

In its promotion of American art, the organization sends exhibits to all parts of the country, accompanied by a salesman.

TRAVELS IN TARTARY. By Ernesto Regis Huc. Edited by Adolphe de Tizac. Translated from the French by W. Hazlitt (Knopf.)

This recent issue in the Blue Jade Library contains the first volume of Pere Huc's Travels. At the age of 24 the author entered the Lazarist Order, and in 1829 he went out to China. There he spent several years at various missions, studying Chinese and making numerous translations. In 1844 he and another missionary were sent to explore the newly created apostolic vicariate of Mongolia, and for the following two years these two traveled over the country, Tibet and China, making their way as far as the Forbidden City of Lhasa, where they lived for some time. Pere Huc's account of his adventures was first issued in Paris in 1850. The translation here presented is by the son of William Hazlitt. The illustrations are taken from the woodcuts of the first edition.

HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Social Items

ONE of the attractive parties of the day was luncheon given by Mrs. E. M. Gossman of 310 Skinner road at the University Club in honor of Miss Virginia McVoy, daughter of Mr. James A. McVoy, who is home from Wells College, where she is a senior, for the Christmas holidays. The table was adorned in bright red (the Wells College color) candles in crystal sticks, with two miniature Christmas trees festooned in silver as centerpieces. The favors and place cards were: Miss Janie Allen, Miss Marianne Coleman, Miss Mary Howell Beets, Miss Martha Schuyler, Miss Anita Bowling, Miss Elizabeth Clark, Miss Katherine Hall, Miss Laura Capen, Miss Elizabeth Cabell Gray, Miss Julia Hafner, Miss Louise Rexford and the latter's mother, Mrs. Ley P. Rexford.

Miss McVoy's brother, Alexander McVoy, will be home from Princeton University for the holidays.

Miss Elizabeth Clark, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Clark of 5224 Westminster place, will depart Dec. 26 for Cincinnati, O., to be the guest of Miss Edith Symmons who visited her earlier in the season. She will be gone a week, and with them Miss Leyman's debut party and the Princeton Triangle Club show, which is to play there during her visit.

Miss Ruth Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Krause of 716 Belmont lace, will have as her guest, Miss Jessie Malotte of Detroit, who will arrive Dec. 26 to spend a week.

A number of parties are being arranged for her, the dates to be announced later. Miss Malotte is at home for Christmas from the Boston Art Institute.

Among the students attending the Missouri Military Academy at Mexico, Mo., who will spend the Christmas vacation with their families are Wells Col. Freist, son of W. Blodgett Priest of 6043 Clemens avenue; Earl Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Jones of 3 Kingsbury place, and Lawrence Brecker, son of Mrs. Helen Piero Brecker of 5227 Westminster place.

Mr. Alfred Hebard, of 4924 Pershing avenue, is at the Jewish Hospital convalescing from an operation. Thursday her son, Alfred Hebard Jr., will arrive from Harvard University to spend the holidays with his mother at Hotel Chase.

Mr. J. A. Hardy entertained at dinner Saturday night for her nephew, Dr. E. L. Neenan and his bride of Sioux City, Ia., who are passing through St. Louis on their way to Hot Springs.

JUDGES LOOK INTO INVESTIGATORS' WORK

Some Question Usefulness of Staff of Women in Domestic Relations Court.

The periodical investigation of the investigators, employed by the Court of Domestic Relations in divorce cases involving the custody of children, has been undertaken anew by a committee of Circuit Judges.

One of the seven positions as investigator has been vacant since the resignation of Miss Clara Delle Nov. 15. Judge Taylor, as Judge of the Juvenile Court, could have made the appointment, but he turned the matter over to his colleagues with the implication that he did not think it needful to fill the position. The committee of Judges named to consider the matter, and to look into the general usefulness of the investigators, consists of Judge Calhoun, chairman; Judges Taylor, Ossing, Hogan and Frey.

The investigators receive $167.50 a month each. Those now employed are Mrs. Beatrice Cooper, who is the supervisor, though at no higher salary than the rest; Mrs. Theresa Davis, Mrs. Florence Carr, Misses Anna Koenig and Laura Sherman, and Thomas Brown.

Some of the judges, it is understood, hold that the findings of the investigators are in most cases of no vital consequence, as the facts are brought out through inquiries in court. The facts reported by the investigators are often irrelevant, some of the judges hold.

A discussion of the investigation was carried on three years ago, resulted in a recommendation by the St. Louis Bar Association that the system be abolished. The Circuit Judges rejected the recommendation. The positions were created by an ordinance which became effective in July, 1921, and which was backed by women's organizations.

SENATE SMOTHERS
UTILITIES INQUIRY

the part played by holding companies in the formation of great power groups. Authority would also be given the investigating committee to turn the light on efforts by public utility corporations to control public opinion through the expenditure of money, or to influence or control elections.

The inquiry would be conducted by a special committee of five Senators appointed by Vice President Dawes.

Stressing the need for an investigation, Walsh told the Senate that capital was now going into the electric power industry at the rate of nearly half a billion dollars a year. He declared that mergers which were taking place had given rise to widespread concern.

POWER COMPANY COMBINES.

"Rapidly the operating companies throughout the country are passing into the control of half a dozen great groups through holding companies and other devices," he said. "If this investigation shall be ordered and I shall have anything to do with it, I shall endeavor to make it constructive rather than critical; I shall endeavor to find out what the facts are, so the public may know, and I shall endeavor to tell the all of the committee men eminent in economics who have studied this particular question as well as the business men who are connected with the industry."

Walsh said that the industry itself, through its organ, the Electrical World, did not object to an investigation, but merely asked that the inquiry be not given a political tinge. He introduced numerous editorials to show there was wide public demand for investigation.

La Follette of Wisconsin declared that the question of holding an investigation should be threshed out on the open floor of the Senate, and not in the quiet of the committee room, as so subtly recommended by the Senator from New Hampshire."

Refers to Utilities' Lobby.

"We are all aware," said La Follette, "that these enormously powerful organizations represented in the power business of the country have established here at Washington a lobby through which they propose to influence the passage of this resolution and other legislation, which may come up during this session of Congress affecting the power industry."

Wheeler of Montana said that the subject was one which intimately affected every housewife in the country and every manufacturer using electric power. He said that if the resolution were sent to the Interstate Commerce Committee not a particle of information would be supplied to the Senate that was not already in the possession of every member.

The Interstate Commerce Committee is composed of the following members: Republicans: Watson of Indiana, Gooding of Idaho, Couzens of Michigan, Foss of Idaho, Howell of Nebraska, Goff of West Virginia, Pine of Oklahoma, Sackett of Kentucky, Metcalf of Rhode Island and du Pont of Delaware. Democrats: Smith of South Carolina, Pittman of Tennessee, Bruce of Maryland, Bill of Washington, Wheeler of Montana, Marfield of Texas and Hayes of Missouri.

Walsh may win, but his program or the present is in a bad way.

14 SLOT MACHINES IN E. ST. LOUIS SEIZED

Action Follows Statement of Judge He Thinks Operators Are Protected.

Twelve deputy sheriffs of East
St. Louis and Belleville last night seized 11 slot machines in simultaneous raids in East St. Louis, whereupon East St. Louis police seized three machines.

The first raids were ordered by State's Attorney Lindauer. Affidavits upon which the search warrants were based were signed by H. L. Morris and the warrants were issued in Belleville. No arrests were made, but officers said they would apply for gambling warrants.

County Judge Weber of Belleville Dec. 6 stated publicly that he was convinced protection was given slot machine owners.

DESCRIBES WOODROW

WILSON'S YEARS AS UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Van Dyke continued, and when Mr.
Wilson served in the White House,
Dr. Van Dyke was Minister to Holland.

Mr. Wilson felt that the undertaking was "the most critical work
of my whole administration, the work upon which its whole vitality and success depend." A vote at a faculty meeting upheld him, and at a later meeting Mr. Wilson made an enthusiastic and eloquent address on his plan "as in fact conceived and intended, now as not represented." No opposition arose in the Board of Trustees, chiefly from Pyne, a man of great weight in the councils of Princeton.
At the October, 1907, meeting of the board, Pyne offered a resolution rescinding the previous approval of the Wilson plan, and the board adopted it, though stating that it left the president free to advocate his plan. The outcome for Mr. Wilson was, as he said, "complete defeat and mortification."

Failed to Alter Situation.

Further efforts by Mr. Wilson did not alter the situation. The club system has not been overthrown, but the author points out that Mr. Wilson's successor, President Cleveland, has not failed to denounce the system, and that a committee appointed by him made a report "that might almost have been written by Wilson himself."

In 1908 and 1909, the controversy over the location and general plans of the graduate college brought a definite division between West, who was backed by Grover Cleveland, and President Wilson.

Dean West's matured plans for the graduate college proved to call for an exceptionally costly plant,
to accommodate a comparatively small number of students, and to be located apart from the university proper. It became known that gifts for the graduate college were being sought without reference to the president and his plans for the university as a whole. The fruit of these solicitations came in the offer, by William Cooper Procter, of $500,000 for the graduate college, conditional on the adoption of his plans which coincided with those of West.

To "fix $500,000" is a difficult task, but Mr. Wilson tackled it. He contended for a central location chiefly. In this, the author claims, he failed. He made a mistake. He should have attacked West's authoritarian control of the graduate college. It is held. "But Wilson hated to make a personal issue,"
and he did all he could to avoid an open quarrel with West. He even sought, vainly, to get Procter to change his plans and requirements. He took the fight to the individual trustees, and prepared his resignation, which he gave it to be understood would be presented if the offer were accepted.
When it became evident that conditions were no longer favorable to acceptance of the offer,
Procter withdrew it.

$1,000.00 Bequest Last Straw.

This caused a storm. The president was in Bermuda when it broke, but he returned and toured the country, appearing before an annual group in New York. At the height of the discussion, when it appeared that opinion was turning in Wilson's direction, a Princeton graduate, Isaac C. Wyman, died, leaving his entire estate of more than $1,000,000 to Princeton, for the graduate college, with Dean West as trustee.

"We have beaten the living,"
Mr. Wilson said to his wife when he heard the news, "but we can't fight the dead. The game is up."
He began to prepare for the resignation, which came in October, 1910, after his nomination for Governor of New Jersey.

In 1912, during his campaign for the presidency, Mr. Wilson heard that a letter from Grover Cleveland, attacking him for his attitude in the Princeton controversies,
was to be used by his opponents.

Mr. Cleveland died in 1908. Mr.
Wilson prepared a reply, to be used in case the Cleveland letter were used. This did not happen, and the Wilson letter is first published in an appendix to the book.

Letter Referring to Cleveland.

In the letter, speaking of Mr.
Cleveland, Mr. Wilson said:
"I can only deplore the fact that this group of people did not have seen that the same forces were at work in the university which it had become our duty to fight throughout the nation—forces which were making against democracy and for-

special privilege in the university,
which I know he conscientiously sought to serve."

"Since his (Cleveland's) death,
Prof. West's ideas have been carried out. The graduate hall of residence is being erected upon a site far removed from the rest of the university buildings. It is to cost somewhat less than 100 students; is to have a dining hall which will itself cost $20,000, a special gift
by Mr. William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, and the beautiful tower which is to be erected in memory of Mr. Cleveland, by the subscription of many hundreds of citizens of the university. The tower is to be part of the great structure. The author has overwhelmed all opposition, and Prof. West's ideals of university life have for the time prevailed
at Princeton."

Comment on Site Location.

The author pointed out that the main building of the graduate school, which Mr. Wilson deemed of prime importance, has been rendered less vital by the growth of the university and by new means of transportation.

"Today," the author says,
"Princeton is developing a new intellectual impetus, unique among American universities, that should ultimately give it that pre-eminence of leadership which Wilson
craved so ardently. Great problems that Wilson perceived problems of the relationship of the inner purpose of the university and the 'outside' activities—still remain, and the side shows—still remain, and will continue to be irritating until boldly faced, as Wilson faced them."

Van Dyke continued, and when Mr.
Wilson served in the White House,
Dr. Van Dyke was Minister to Hol-
land.

CITY LOSES SUIT OVER IMPROVEMENT CHARGE

Property Owners Defeat Assesment for Engineering and Other Expenses.

An injunction suit to test the right of the city to assess engineering and other overhead expenses of public improvements against benefited property was decided against the city yesterday by Circuit Judge Hartmann. He sustained property owners' suit in the name of Jacob J. Pflueger, 5955 Romaine Place, who argued that the city's answer in the suit admitted virtually all the allegations.

A 6 per cent assessment for engineering and inspection had been added to the regular assessment
against Pflueger for a street improvement. He contended that the service had been performed by city employees and should be met from general revenue. Pflueger
also held that nothing in the city charter authorized such an assessment. The city contended that the city charter might be construed to support the charge.

Princeton's Kingman of the Board of Public Service said, after Judge Hartmann's ruling, that he thought an ordinance could be enacted to provide for assessment of overhead costs in any improvement
against the benefited property.

RAID PRISONER RELEASED

Liquor Charges Dismissed When Real Owner of Roadhouse Appears.
George Dowling of 215 North Tenth street, East St. Louis, accounted for his presence in a road-

house during a raid by testifying before Federal Commissioners. Felson yesterday that he was "a book-maker, but not a bootlegger." Enforcement officers found Dowling harmless and coatless and said he appeared to be the proprietor.
Charges of sale and possession
were dismissed against Dowling
when Sam Kelly testified that he owned the roadhouse, which is located at 5029 Lake drive, East St. Louis. Kelly was held.

20 COMMUNISTS REPORTED SHOT IN HANKOW SUNDAY

Four Girls Among 14 Students Included in Number Executed as Mob Howls "Kill the Reds."

By the Associated Press.
HANKOW, China, Dec. 20.—More than 20 Chinese rebels were executed here over the weekend.

Fourteen students, including four girls, were shot Sunday.

While the executions were in progress a mob of soldiers and coolies gathered. "Kill the communists with bolshewism," they shouted.

"Down with imperialism," one girl shouted before she was executed.

Those executed were seized in anticomunist raids last Friday. More than 700 communists in all were arrested, Chinese officials said. Seventeen Russians are still in the hands of the military authorities. It is reported that they are destined for execution within a few days.

The Hankow garrison commander issued a circular letter to foreign consuls today asking for co-operation of the foreign authorities in driving communists from the Wuhan cities (Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang).

EAST ST. LOUIS TERMINAL
MOVED TO CAIRO FOR WINTER

Almost Doubles Capacity of Federal Barge Line Facilities There.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CAIRO, Ill., Dec. 19.—The East St. Louis Terminal of the Federal Barge line was brought to Cairo yesterday by the tow boats General Ashburn and Minnesota and will be used here during the rest of the winter.

Cairo is the northern head of all year navigation on the Mississippi River because of the heavy ice that blocks navigation north of this point during the winter months.

The equipment brought to Cairo from East St. Louis includes three barges, one warehouse barge and one crane barge. The capacity of the Cairo Terminal will be almost doubled by use of the added equipment.

AUTO SAVES ITSELF FROM FIRE

Horn Starts Sound and Arouses Owners.

MCLEANSBORO, Ill., Dec. 20.—Awakened by the mournful and continuous wail of an automobile horn and believing that thieves were trying to take their coupe, which was in the garage near their home, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brewster ran to the garage at 3 a. m. to catch the thieves. They were surprised to find the coupe alone, but still smoldering over the S. O. S.

It was found the wiring around the steering wheel had caught fire and in some way made connection which caused the horn to sound. Thus the auto saved itself from possible destruction by fire.

MOSES COUNTING ON 8 YEARS OF HOOVER

Senator Sure the Californian Can Not Only Be Elected, but Re-Elected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Senator George H. Moses, President pro tem of the Senate, wants Secretary of Commerce Hoover to be elected President next year so as to assure Republican control until 1932.

Hoover's most important controversial point in his signed article in the North American Review, published today. Referring first to President Coolidge's statement of last Aug. 2, he says:

"We of New England, at any rate, know our vernacular. When

Calvin Coolidge said, 'I do not choose to run for President in 1928,' he meant that he is not a candidate. Those who seek to read another meaning into his words are doing him no real serv-

"But there is no doubt of the widespread confidence in and enthusiasm for the Coolidge policies. To continue them is the plain purpose of the great majority of the American people. Whoever carries the Republican banner in the campaign of 1928 must march under the Coolidge colors. Naturally, therefore, those of us who knew Coolidge himself, do not lead us have been calling about for the man who best could."

Such a man, pre-eminently

Moses argues is Hoover. But is he

WIFE GETS $10,000 ALIMONY AND $150 A MONTH FROM MAN

Mrs. Alice B. Stahlberg Given Divorce From Real Estate Agent; Awarded Custody of Son.

Gross alimony of $10,000, in addition to $150 monthly alimony, was awarded Mrs. Alice B. Stahlberg by a stipulation in a divorce granted at Clayton today from Raymond Stahlberg, a real estate agent of 7204 Westmoreland avenue, University City.

She also got custody of their 6-year-old son, and $100 monthly for his support, their summer home at Vineyard Haven, Mass., and the furnishings of the Westmoreland avenue home. Stahlberg is to pay bills totaling $1050 contracted by her prior to Nov. 1. She alleged general indignities. They were married in 1917 and separated Nov. 1.

Be a perfect hostess...
make a wonderful cake...
all
at the same time!

Don't be disconcerted by unexpected guests. While they take off their hats and powder their noses, you can make a cake—with Instant Swans Down! Only 5 minutes from package to oven.

Highest quality ingredients are contained in Instant Swans Down. Swans Down Cake Flour, shortening, sugar, egg whites, baking powder, and flavoring extract are carefully measured and mixed, in the form of a "dry batter".

Just add milk

and beat! You'll have a delicious white cake! To make other kinds, simply add other ingredients to Instant Swans Down. It's a wonderful saving of time and labor.

WHEN YOU MIX
YOUR OWN
INGREDIENTS
USE REGULAR SWANS
DOWN CAKE FLOUR

Besides Instant Swans Down, there is also regular Swans Down Cake Flour—the famous flour alone, with no other ingredients added. It's

27 times as fine as bread flour

Hundreds of thousands of women make finer, lighter cakes with Swans Down. Try it!

BISHOPS REFUSE TO DEFY PARLIAMENT

Anglican Prelates Seek Compromise in Controversy Over Prayer Book.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—A suggestion that implied a challenge of the authority of the State in regard to the Church of England is understood to have been made at the meeting of Bishops.

The suggestion was that convocations should be invited to give their full synodical approval to the new prayer book, rejected last week by the House of Commons. If this were done the book would then possess all the necessary spiritual authority.

Since the Church of England is the state church and Parliament's approval is required for the revised prayer book, it was felt that this course would have the much of the appearance of a challenge to the authority of the state.

One of the Bishops suggested that the revisions contained in the rejected book be taken as a limit or permitted deviations from the prayer book. Not all the Bishops who are meeting at Lambeth Palace were willing to adopt that plan.

Another suggestion was that the book be withdrawn and amended by omitting, for the time being, the offices of Holy Communion and visitation of the sick. This course, however, would require much time as it would mean taking the book through various legislative stages and the convocation of the Church of England.

Many Bishops are understood to favor the passing of an amending measure through the church assembly to allow modifications to be made to some of these provisions in the revised book to which evangelical opposition has been taken. Thus a compromise might be reached in order to remove the prospect of disestablishment,

BILL SUBMITTED TO GIVE
NAVY RIGHT OVER OIL LEASES

Measure Introduced in Senate Would Take Jurisdiction From the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—At the request of Secretary Work, Chairman Nye, of the Senate Public Lands Committee yesterday introduced a bill to transfer from the Navy Department the jurisdiction, administration and enforcement of oil and gas leases on lands in the naval oil reserves.

After the United States Supreme Court turned back to the Government the Wyoming and California naval oil reserves which had been leased to Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny, President Coolidge rescinded the executive order issued by President Harding in May, 1921, transferring jurisdiction over the reserves from the Navy to the Interior Department.

Nye is undecided as to the necessity of the legislation which he has submitted and said that his committee would hold hearings on the subject after the Christmas holidays.

2 SHOT IN HOTEL ROOM

Man and Woman Found Dead, Resolved Between Them.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 20.—A man and a woman registered in a hotel here as Joe Wending and wife of Logan, O., were found dead in their room early today, each with three bullet wounds.

Screams from the woman attracted attention of other guests, who then heard six shots fired. The Coroner was unable to determine which was shot first. A struggle was found lying between them. There was no sign of a struggle, police said. Wending was thought to be about 45 years of age and the woman about 55.

$918 IN JEWELRY STOLEN

Returning from the basement after tending the winter refectory afternoon, Mrs. Helen Niles, 1744 North Euclid avenue, found the front door open and jewelry valued at $212 and a small amount of money missing.

The jewelry consisted of a diamond ring valued at $538 and a diamond bar pin valued at $280. A burglar, she thought, had entered the back door and left by the front door.

Bodies Put in Harding Tomb.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—Preliminary to the formal burial rites scheduled for tomorrow, the bodies of the late President and Mrs. Warren G. Harding were removed today from the vault in Marion Cemetery to the $500,000 Harding memorial, erected just south of the city. Dedication of the tomb has been tentatively set for next June. President Coolidge is expected to deliver the principal address.

July to Notify Hotels and Clubs Not to Serve Them During Holidays.

Prohibition Administrator Haley has announced he will notify St. Louis hotel and club managers not to serve "set-ups"—ginger ale, soda or ice—to guests during the holiday period, particularly on New Year's eve. He asserted service of these things, which can be used in making drinks of liquor, might make the managements liable to prosecution for abetting violation of the Volstead act.

Hotels and clubs throughout the country have been serving ginger ale, soda and ice ever since prohibition became effective. He called attention to a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, upholding an injunction against a Colorado roadside house, where the proprietor sold soft beverages to mix in highballs.

Prohibition agents "will visit the hotels and clubs on New Year's eve and look around," the administrator said. He remarked that he had suspended seven of his agents who failed to make passing grades in the recent civil service examination to keep of working hard, since no changes in personnel will be made before May or June.

HOUSE AMENDS BILL TO AVOID PAYING MONEY TO BERGDOLL

General Debate on Alien Property Measure Ended: Little Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The House today adopted an amendment to the alien property bill to prevent any payment to Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious draft evader now a fugitive in Germany, or property seized during the war. The House worked until after dark last night to conclude its general debate on the alien property bill so that the measure can be sent to the Senate before the Christmas recess.

The debate disclosed little opposition to the settlement proposed in the bill for the claims between German and American nations growing out of the war. Representative Cox (Dem.) of Georgia, and the little opposition that developed, contended that retention of 20 per cent of German property ultimately would constitute confiscation, contrary to national and international law.

Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee, which drafted the bill, insisted that the situation would be temporary only and was for the purpose of security and satisfaction of American claims.

CHARGE OF AIDING HOLDUP IN DRUG STORE DISMISSED

A charge of assault to rob against Cecil John Williams of Elington, Mo., dating back to Oct. 12, when Clarence Mueller, Williams' companion, was killed in attempting a holdup, was not pressed yesterday before Circuit Judge Pearce by Circuit Attorney Sidenor.

In explaining his action, Sidenor said he believed Williams was not aware that Mueller contemplated a holdup when he walked into a drug store at 4323 Marcus avenue. He also said that investigation had shown Williams had led a law-abiding life both before and after the holdup.

Leroy H. Schumann, the drug store proprietor, who shot Mueller, declared Williams should have been prosecuted. He asserted Williams had a pistol in his hand during the holdup, but Sidenor said he was not aware of that fact.

Williams left the city after the holdup and was arrested almost three years later, when he returned.

COCHRAN TRAILS SCHAEFER 89 POINTS IN TITLE BALKLINE MATCH

TWO PLAY POOR BILLIARDS IN OPENING BLOCK

Challenger Averages but 25 in Scoring 300-211 Victory — Stars Complain About Heated Table.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—On a table that was heated by electrically charged coils, Jake Schaefer of Chicago conquered Weller Cochran, title holder, 306 to 211, in the opening block of their world's championship 18-2 balkline match at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. A high run of 148 in the sixth inning followed by a run of 65 laid the foundation for the victory of the Chicago player.

After the game was over both players complained about the ivories being "jumpy" and the champion declared that it was almost impossible to make a draw shot. Cochran pointed to several shots that Schaefer missed on account of the ivories misbehaving while he himself once knocked his cue ball off the table and another time missed the easiest kind of a draw shot.

Ever since billiards have been played, champions and near-champions have complained about the ivories not rolling right over the green cloth. So in the previous matches the room was always kept at certain temperature and the doors were always kept closed. The spectators, however, complained that there was not enough ventilation and suffered from the heat of the room, especially if the match was a long one.

Plays an Uppish Game.

Last night the table was heated by coils placed under the slate, and the doors of the room left open. But while there was plenty of ventilation for the spectators, there was a bit too much heat for the ivories, and on more than one occasion they did not respond to the touch of the cue the way they should. Probably the ivories should have been heated, but it will be more accustomed to the heat.

Cochran was forced to play an uphill battle and at one time was only 68 points behind the challenger. He had the ball near the end of the table in a good position in the second inning when he hit the cue ball and it jumped off the table. Again in the ninth inning he ended a run of 31 when the cue ball kissed the white ball on a three-cushion shot.

Schaefer won the bank and chose the white ball. The challenger failed to score in the first two innings, while the champion counted two in his initial appearance at the table and followed with a run of 16. His seventeenth shot was a comparatively easy draw, but he played it with too much confidence and his cue ball just failed to come back far enough to touch the white ball. Schaefer made 23 in the third inning, missing a hard masse. The challenger finally got his stroke, working smoothly in the sixth inning and smoothly to rest greatness as a billiard player, making his high of 148. He had the ivories under almost perfect control and kept them near the ends of the table. He scored most of his points by clever nursing. Now and then he was forced to make a long table shot which he executed like a real billiard master.

Executed Five Massé Shot.

He had a lineup on his eighty-fourth shot with his cue ball almost touching the rail. The challenger completed the shot with due massé, and the spectators applauded. On his eighth-sixth shot he brought the balls down to the other end of the table, and finally drove them into a corner. He made one massé shot then another. On his second massé he drove the red ball out of bank and to the center of the table. He shot at the red ball. The cue ball hit the side of the cushion, came caroming back, but failed to come into contact with the spot ball and Schaefer retired to his chair.

Cochran then made his best run of the night, 100-100. His playing rights ended with a 65. His playing rights fell off as he scored only 22 points in his next four innings, while Cochran was scoring 111 points. Schaefer, however, ended the game in the eleventh inning with a run of 32.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Enough Is Too Much.

THE case of Lou O'Farrell is interesting. Cardinal fans to whom he is a result of an operation performed on Bob's thumb yesterday depends in a large measure his ability to go through another campaign as leading backstop of the club.

A stiffness in his thumb which seriously interferes with his throwing and catching will, it is expected, be removed by the operation; but the hoped-for result is not promised. It is conceivable, surgeons hold out, that O'Farrell's thumb may never permit a return to his old efficiency.

That would be sad for the club. The management has loaded up with catchers pending the outcome of the operation. It has enough receivers. But the come-the-time is no O'Farrell.

That is bad for the team. A fine-class catcher, such as the "most valuable player" of 1926, stiffens the backbone of any pitching staff.

Worse for O'Farrell.

THE real victim, however, is the real sufferer would be O'Farrell himself. His catching career would be cut short.

This is a drastic penalty for the crime of working too faithfully. For that is at the bottom of O'Farrell's troubles. Bob caught 147 games in 1926 which badly overworked his arm, and contributed to the mishap that caused the present condition of his thumb.

PLAYS AN UPPISH GAME.

O'FARRELL is not the first athlete to suffer from undertaking too much. In 1914 Big Bill James, one of the three hurlers who pitched the depised Braves from last place into a world's championship in two months and a half, took his turn on the hill every third day along

PLAYS AN UPPISH GAME.

Last night the table was heated by coils placed under the slate, and the doors of the room left open. But while there was plenty of ventilation for the spectators, there was a bit too much heat for the ivories, and on more than one occasion they did not respond to the touch of the cue the way they should. Probably the ivories should have been heated, but it will be more accustomed to the heat.

As a result of that strenuous year James dropped out of baseball and never pitched a big league game thereafter, if memory serves.

The Case of Radbourne.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The bantamweight division continues to be one of the most unsatisfactory in contests. At the time of the 1926 national boxing consensus Charlie Rosenberg held the title, but there was a general feeling that he was no longer a 118-pounder, and this sentiment was reflected in the 1926 national boxing consensus. The Italian champion received two first, two seconds, three thirds and seven fourths.

Sixty-one leading newspaper boxing experts in the nation's leading boxing centers contributed to the 1927 consensus. Ten points were awarded to first place, nine for second and so on down to one for tenth place, each selector ranking 10 boxers in each division. The highest possible total for any boxer was 610 points. Selectors were permitted to rank one boxer in two divisions in cases where the boxer has performed in two divisions.

NO. 2, seven as third and three as fourth, making 44 in the first for the Brooklyn Italian.

The other first place votes were split up as follows: Baldo, one. Smith one, Francis two.

Twenty-six selectors rated Baldo among the first five. Goldstein was chosen in the first division by 22 experts. Though many selectors ignored Francis, those who gave him consideration placed him high among the contenders. The Italian champion received two first, two seconds, three thirds and seven fourths.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 20.—Fourteen of Missouri's 23 licensed boxing officials attended the opening sessions of a two-day school for boxers here yesterday. The school, the first of its kind in the United States, is being held under auspices of the Missouri Athletic Commission.

With Harry S. Sharpe, veteran St. Louis referee, presiding, the session started with a round table discussion. Discussion leaders were Dr. Earl Blackman, Kansas City; Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, and Walter Bates, veteran Kansas City ring official.

Bud Taylor, proclaimed champion by the National Boxing Association, but not recognized in this state, is the choice of the newspaper experts in the lead. The leading centers of the country as the foremost bantamweight, Taylor is credited with 534 points. The Terre Haute boy enjoys a long lead over Archie Bell of Brooklyn, who is second with 533 points.

Bushy Graham, rated third despite the fact he has been idle this year due to his suspension, has 359 points and Tony Canzoneri, in fourth place, 357. Thus there are 10 points between Bell and Canzoneri.

Baldo is placed fifth.

Teddy Baldo of London, who boxed in only six-round bouts in this country because he was not 21 years old, is in fifth place with 291. Baldo holds a close decision over Bell, scored in London last summer, but trails Archie by more than 100 points.

Abe Goldstein, former champion of the class, at the top of the bantam division with 220, Willie Smith, the South African, who leaped into prominence by outpointing Baldo, is in seventh position with 262. Andy Martin of Boston is eighth, Emil Paluso of Salt Lake City ninth and Kid Francis, a recent arrival from Italy, is rated tenth.

The case of Francis is similar to that of French Belenger in the flyweight division. Francis, holder of the Italian championship, has had only half a dozen bouts in this country. It was not until he met Archie Bell in Madison Square Garden that the Italian boy forced the critics to give him more than passing attention.

Bell was a 6 to 1 favorite on that occasion, but Francis outpunched and outfought the Brooklynite to win. On the face of this fact it would appear that Francis should be rated much higher than tenth.

Cases Are Similar.

Taylor received himself in much the same position as occupied by Rosenberg a year ago. There is a widespread belief that Bud cannot make 118 pounds without undergoing a surgical operation. He has done almost all his fighting above the bantamweight limit.

In fact, there is doubt as to the ability of many of the leading bantam to qualify as legitimate 118 pounders. Tony Canzoneri has announced his intention to box as a featherweight in the future, but is ranked here as a bantam on the strength of past performances. Baldo and Smith also fall into this category.

Taylor received by far more first place votes than any other boxer to date. He also received the second by 10 selectors, third by one and fifth by one, giving him a total of 55 ratings in the first five out of a possible 61.

Bell received more No. 1 ratings than any of the rest, the number being 10. Archie was placed second by five, third by 10, fourth by seven and fifth by 12, for a total of 44, within the first five.

GIBSON WILL REMAIN AS CARD CATCHER

Uncertainty of O'Farrell's Operation Causes St. Louis Management to Retain Former Brave.

Because of the uncertainty of the outcome of the operation performed on Bob O'Farrell's thumb yesterday, Catcher Frank Gibson, purchased by the Cardinals from the Boston Braves recently, will be retained by the St. Louis club, President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals has announced.

After Gibson had been transferred to St. Louis, it was learned that San Antonio was after him to manage that team in the Texas League, and the Cardinal management was at first favorable towards releasing him for the manager's job. But the operation, which O'Farrell had to undergo, has changed the complexion of Gibson's standing, and he will remain as a necessary cog in the Cardinal machine.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician, who performed the operation, asserted that the operation is a delicate one, and that it will be some time before it will be known whether the thumb will be restored to normal.

KNOCKOUT VICTORY
IN COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Ruby Goldstein came back to boxing like a Western twister last night. He knocked out Ray Mitchell of Philadelphia in one minute 20 seconds of the third round in a bout scheduled to go six rounds, at the St. Nicholas rink.

Mitchell was knocked through the ropes for a count of nine in the second round, and a right-hand uppercut flattened him prone on his back in the third. The punch sat Mitchell down and he kept on going over backward, where he was counted out.

LUQUE ARRESTED FOR ASSAULTING UMPIRE

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 29.—Additional to Luque, veteran pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, was arrested here yesterday on a charge of assaulting an umpire during a baseball game. Luque is managing the Almendares club, a semipro nine, during the winter months. While a game was in progress Luque was alleged to have punched Umpire Valente Gonzales, causing several bruises.

Dr. Spears will have charge of football instruction, and basketball classes will be instructed by Henderson.

POINTERS ON BASKETBALL

Coach at Washington University.

ARTICLE NO. 4.

This dribble is an fundamental of the offense and should be taught as such. It is one of the most spectacular plays in basketball. It can, however, do much harm to a team as it does good if not used in the proper manner.

The following are a few rules and values of the dribble:

Dribble out of a scrummage in order to pass or to start offense.

Short drive in open for shot under basket.

Very valuable on tip-off and out-of-bounds plays.

Bring ball up on all set offensive formation.

To draw defensive men out.

When a pass is intercepted, a fast dribble toward the basket is valuable. The player can get the man on this dribble or get up for a close-in shot.

Combined with feints and plays to get free from the defense players.

The dribble results in harm if not controlled and used correctly. It can easily cause indecision on the part of teammates.

It is slower than a pass, and through use of man v. opportunity to score are lost by the player dribbling when he should not.

It results in one-man offenses not coached properly.

It may encourage thoughtless driving.

The execution of the dribble is

St. Jean Defeats Greenleaf Twice
Leads Former Pocket Billiard Champion 210-102 in a Special Match.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Andrew St. Jean of Minneapolis got away to a big lead on Ralph Greenleaf by defeating the former champion in the first two blocks of their handicap pocket billiard match which started at Hoppe's academy, yesterday. St. Jean won the early game 125 to 19 and the night affair, 105 to 81. In the two games he tallied 210 points to his rival's 102.

Greenleaf, who for six consecutive years won the world's title, has agreed to play 1500 points to his rival's 1250 in 12 blocks for a purse of $1000. These are the same conditions that the two stars played under in their recent match in which St. Jean won and actually outscored the former champion.

that West Point adopt the three-year provision. Unless voluntary action is forthcoming, Britton threatened to present West Point's attitude to the House "in its true light."

Pittsburgh Uses a Rare Herb Remedy to Keep Youthful Fires Burning.

I am nearing 60 years, but I feel as young as I did at 30. I take a cupful of Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea one or twice a week. It keeps me healthy, and I feel good and the feel young again," said H. H. Von Schlech, manufacturer of Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea.

If you are constipated or have rheumatism, liver, kidney or stomach trouble, don't wait another day. You need vigor and energy to perform your work. Why not feel 10 to 30 years younger?

Why just to break up a bad cold quickly, Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea is the best tonic in spring. The rich Herb Juices, taken hot at bedtime, heat up the chilled blood, stimulate the circulation and aid nature to cast the poison germs out of your system. See your druggist—35c, 75c, $1.25.

Skjellerup's Discovery, Moving Northward, Can Be Seen With Telescope in Middle West.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Dec. 20.—Prof. Edgar B. Frost, astronomer in charge of Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago, announced yesterday that the new comet, Skjellerup, discovered Dec. 4 at Melbourne, Australia, now is visible in the Middle West with the aid of a telescope.

It was observed with the telescope Sunday evening at the observatory on the Southwest horizon about 11 degrees north of the sun and may be seen best about one-half hour before and one-half hour after sunset.

His observations have shown, the astronomer said, that the comet is moving slowly a little north of the celestial equator instead of far over the northern hemisphere as first indicated.

On Christmas it probably will be best seen shortly before sunrise, he said, adding that with the aid of the large telescope at the observatory it had been followed for a time even in the bright sunshine.

He said the comet is moving northward from the sun at the rate of about two degrees a day and will be visible possibly for a month after which it will turn southward.

Skjellerup Comet Visible in Daytime in Arizona.

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—Prof. Harlow Shapley, Director of the Harvard Observatory, announced last night that he had received a telegram from the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., reporting that the Skjellerup comet had been visible there throughout the day for the last three days. The report said that it was brightest last Friday and could be seen with the naked eye five degrees from the sun.

Computations made by astronomers at the Harvard Observatory from the reports received from the Lowell Observatory bore out the reports of other observers that the comet was moving northward.

That is how many people regard Resinol Ointment. It is specially recommended for excema and other itching skin trouble. It is also excellent as a general household remedy for burns, scalds, chafings, cold sores, pimples, boils, insect bites, etc. Always ask for

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

—By—
Marguerite Moers Marshall

THREE CHEERS FOR THE RED, WHITE AND BLUE KITCHEN!

Or the orange and black one. Or the pink and green one. Or the purple and daffodil-colored one. Or any one of the new kitchens in the gay and gaudy colors which are a joy to the home woman who does the world's most monotonous work, and who, until recently, has had to do it in the most monotonous surrounding. New labor saving devices in the kitchen have been gradually lessening the work. But the colored kitchen has arrived with almost explosive suddenness to lessen the monotony.

The kitchen's gone Red—also every other color of the rainbow—and it brings a happy addition into the list of charms of a New York woman! Honestly, we're inclined to think that the colored kitchen is the best thing that's happened to our sex since woman suffrage.

Even the enthusiastic housewife, who can get a thrill out of the ordinary triumphs she prepares for her family, must admit that much of her work is gray. The ever-lasting doing of dishes three times a day, seven days in the week, the woman's edition of the torture of Sisyphus! That's Gray! And it's considered to roll a stone uphill only to watch it roll back to the bottom, when he must start it once more upward. So much kitchen work is just as maddeningly repetitive—not only dish-washing, but peeling fruit and vegetables, sweeping up, grinding coffee, sifting flour, wiping off shelves, washing out dish towels. It's the same thing over and over again—again you can't do it once for all and make an end of it.

Generations of women have performed dull household tasks with dull tools and against a dull background. The kitchen was gray, enamel ware, tin, neutral colored walls and floor, a black stove, an un-painted table, knives with worn wooden handles—everything a woman used or saw in her kitchen has been depressingly colored and of an infuriating sameness. Even the model white kitchen was about as exciting, esthetically, as a sunken operating room.

TO-DAY'S kitchen blossoms as the rose. First, there's all this jolly painted furniture; and, if you don't want the Gray, you can buy unfinished wood and mix your own futuristic paints. We know a kitchen in a little week-end farm-house with the sunniest orange and green effects, produced just by allowing a brushful of one color to drip into a brushful of another.

Yet, colored pots, pans and food containers are even newer and brighter than the furniture. You can buy a yellow enamel tea kettle; red or orange or blue canisters for coffee, tea, flour, sugar, bright-colored dishes and a dish-mug with a matching saucer handled electrical "appliances with matching knobs, handles and cords of every brilliant hue. Your double boiler, your soup kettle, your saucepans may all be purchased in the most glowing primary shades. Rubberized cretonne curtains give splendid color effects at the windows, and yet solve the problem of keeping kitchen curtains clean. Even the handles of the kitchen utensils are bright red or blue, instead of a dingy brown.

Women are pounding on this razzle-dazzle kitchen equipment and we're not surprised. For color is a symbol of cheerfulness, variety, richness, beauty—all the things that have been kept out of the kitchens so relentlessly. Men may smile, but a woman can enjoy mixing a cake much better if her mixing bowl is scarlet as a dancer's frock, instead of a dirty pumpkin shade. She can wash dishes with less boredom if pan and mug are the purest emerald. When sunlight shines into the kitchen through sun-colored curtains printed in a design of bright parrots, the job of watching the corned beef and cabbage is far more pleasant.

THE beauty of homes used to be kept in the guest room and the parlor—for company. Then the living room was made attractive—for the family. At last the kitchen is coming into its own—color and colorfulness—for mother. And, as we remarked above, three rousing cheers!

Frankly, the kitchen is a place in which we have never enjoyed life, though we endured it, when duty called. But this new rainbow kitchen makes us feel almost envious. Certainly it makes us feel like painting our grubby desk a bright scarlet, touching up our typewriter with purple and orange, and writing this column on copy paper of a lovely emerald green.

Grande Toilette Is New Type of Evening Dress

It Is a Semi-Period Frock
Made of the New Taffetas in Black or White or in the New Taffeta Prints.

—By Anne Avery-Ames.

EVERY inconspicuously, but none the less swiftly, an entirely different and definitely new type of evening dress is insinuating itself into the formal mode. It is the "grande toilette" frock, a semi-period dress, and yet in describing it, I dislike using the adjective "period" for fear you will think of the past. This new evening fashion is neither the picture frock nor the robe de style or period gown. The picture frock always has some exaggeration of line or trimming to give it a dramatic air, and the robe de style is, of course, actually based upon a definite style period or remote costume fashion.

The "grande toilette" frock is exceedingly elegant. It is made of the new taffetas in black or white or in the new taffeta prints. As long ago as last spring Chanel in produced one or two plaid and printed taffetas. This season Fouca is taking it up in his collection. Louise Boulanger sent over to the Fifth avenue shops several of her draped taffeta gowns, but it must be explained that Louise Boulanger's taffeta evening gowns more nearly resemble period frocks.

The taffeta frock is made with either a brief or a longer hemline with side or

over the shoulder or the material drawn to one side, with a ribbon sash or drapery at the hipline on the left. The very modern trimming of brilliants may be used on this type of dress.

White Taffeta Wrap

Has Ermine Collar.

Taffeta is as far from the limp chiffon as whipped cream from milk! And in wearing the taffeta frock, one must be very careful to harmonize the accessories—just the correct jewels, the rather long formal earrings, the heavier necklace—or better still, no jewels at all, since the effectiveness of taffeta lies in its frayed crispness. The smart slippers are of satin, in the color of the frock, or the metal brocade pumps which are worn this season.

Word comes from Paris that at several of the fashionable supper gatherings taffeta frocks were worn by well-known French women. Even the evening wrap of white taffeta, quilted in an all-over pattern and with collar and cuffs of white ermine, was worn recently at a night club opening. This would be a new and chirp wrap for Palm Beach resort wear.

The taffeta fabric is in itself

not so important as the tendency and the present tendency in fashions is like it or not toward increased formality. Yet should we be surprised? As natural as

It is bad to have pride in wrong-doing. The right kind of pride is something that everybody should have. Some of those little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows know this quite as well as do we.

One cup fine bread crumb, 1 cup chipped beef, 1 cup thin white sauce, 2 sliced hard-boiled eggs. Bring 2 cups water to a boil in a baking dish, making the top layer of crumb. This dish requires 20 minutes' cooking, hence is a good one to be left to be heated for dinner.

So those who dared to slip over to Farmer Brown's doorway whenever they had a chance just to see Terror a prisoner. At first they kept a respectable distance from the cage. Even in a cage they could not be afraid of him.

They told him they were glad that he was a prisoner and that they hoped he never would be free again. They called him bad names. They jeered at him. And all the time Terror the Goshawk appeared not to see them at all. He sat with his head held high. His pride gave him dignity. De-

You see all these little birds had been made to escape from Terror and had come to look upon him as the greatest danger in the Green Forest that they couldn't believe now that it could be possible there was nothing to fear from him.

CHAPTER XXI.
THEY turned swiftly on old George, who with his chin raised and with face alert was staring at them.

"Safe Deposit, Lombard street," he mumbled. "And a most excellent plan, too—a most excellent plan."

The two men held their breath.

"And quite an ingenious idea," said Spedding as pure a collection of sounds as ever disgraced the uniform of a gallant corps.

"Now," said Spedding in a low tone, "are all the necessary tools here?"

Bob's grin was the answer.

"If we can get an electric connection," he said, "we'll burn out the lock of the safe in half."

"Bob," said Spedding, "the word that's the question. I am in a state of honor you must trust me."

He made a hasty sweep to some invisible presence. "Why not consider your word worth?"

Old George stabbed the pain of his head with a grimy forefinger.

"Why not? Have you read my book? It is only a little book, but useful, sir, remarkably useful. The drawings and the signs are most accurate. An eminent gentleman at the British Museum assisted me in its preparation. It is called 'It is called'—"

He passed his hand wearily over his head, and still down into his chair again, a miserable old man, muttering foolishly.

Spedding wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

"Nearly, nearly," he said huskily. "By heavens! he nearly told us."

Connor looked at him with suspicion.

"What's all this about the book?" he demanded. "This is the second time old George has spoken like this. It's to do with old Reale, isn't it?"

Spedding nodded.

"Come," said Connor, looking at his watch, "it's time we were moving. We'll leave the old man to look after the house. Here, George."

Old George looked up.

"You'll stay here, and not leave till we return. Dye hear?"

"I hear, Mr. Connor, sir," said old George, with his curious assumption of dignity, "and hearing, obey."

As the two men turned into the night, the rain pelted down and a gusty northwesterly wind blew into their faces.

"George," said Connor, answering a question, "oh, we've had him for years. One of the boys found him wandering about Linchance with hardly any clothes to his back, and brought him to us. That was before I knew that 'Borough Lot,' but they used him as a blind. He was worth the money it cost to keep him in food."

Spedding kept the others waiting whilst he dispatched a long telegram from the Westbourne Grove Postoffice. It was addressed to the master of the Poldect lying at Cardiff, and was reasonably unintelligible to the clerk.

They found a taxi at the corner of Queen's Road, and drove to the bank; here they alighted and crossed to the Royal Exchange. Some men in uniform overcoats who were standing about exchanged glances with Connor, and as the two leaders doubled back to Lombard street, followed them at a distance.

"The guard left at 4 o'clock," said Spedding, lifting the key of the heavy outer door. He waited a few minutes in the inky black darkness of the vestibule whilst

Care of the Hands

By Anne Jordan

THE other day I got a letter from a girl who wants to know how to make her hands pretty and white, and since I do not have time for personal answers, I'll tell her an easy method, and it might hit somebody else in the right spot.

The poor youngster said her hands were big and blunt-looking, and about all they were good for was "just a pair of lunch-hooks."

Well, for that matter, most hands are ugly. Perfect hands are almost as scarce as frog hair. But many women have learned that if they keep their hands well groomed, their hands will pass for pretty. I've seen hands that looked as if they were modeled with a sledge hammer, and yet were white and thin and pink and polished, and they looked like a million dollars. And then I've seen hands that were naturally so pretty, tapered fingers slender yet plump, and they were so unkept they looked as ragged as an Alredale pup.

So it really is more the care of your hands than the shape that adds to your charm.

Some women do a great deal of housework, such as dishwashing, scrubbing and the like, and their hands are bound to look unkept unless special care is given them.

Under such conditions, the best plan is to keep a lemon hand, and after finishing such work, the hands should be washed with toilet soap, and rinsed in water in which lemon juice has been squeezed. Then their hands will stay white and never show the strain of housework.

If your hands are already rough and red, you can easily whiten them up by using almond paste on them any time of day that you are not using them. You can make

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, that he take up the censers out of the burning, and scatter thou the fire yonder; for they are hallowed. ## Removing Eye Wrinkles

By Anne Jordan

Most all of us have little wrinkles around our eyes, and we don't pay much attention to them. But suddenly someone who is a little older than we comes over to peer into our face, and says gaily, "Oh, you've got wrinkles, too!" That's when the joy leaves life. We begin to feel like Methuselah and we're men so we could turn out snowbeards that would attract attention from those telltale eyes that have crept to roost around our eyes.

I'm going to tell you how to get rid of these pesky lines that have snuggled beneath your eyes. Of course I'm not going to promise that they will disappear immediately. Anything that is worth while requires honest endeavor to achieve. None was not built in a day, and neither was a wrinkle.
And since wrinkles take time to get, take time to get rid of.
and it requires patience to keep them away afterward.

The first thing you want to do is,
just before you go to bed at night,
wash your face in warm water,
and instead of rinsing it in cold water
afterward as usual, rub cold
cream all over your countenance.
Use any cold cream that has lanolin
as a foundation.

Then set after the muscles that control the skin about the eyes.
These muscles are located at the upper side of the eyes. They run from the tip of the cheekbone to the temple. In massaging use only the very tip of the fingers, rubbing round and round without taking the fingers off the face, in quick little rotary movements.

Rub right around this little muscle
for five or ten minutes, and then, just for luck, treat your whole face to a gentle massage
while you have the cream on it,
and then rub the cold cream off with a soft dry cloth. When you have removed all traces of cold cream, rinse the face in cold water,
then in ice water.

And now comes the last dead
go. Rub cold cream around the lower part of your eyes, applying it rather thickly. Do not put it again to the rest of your face, since it is best to allow the face a few hours
each day in which the pores are open and able to breathe. Then dip two pieces of absorbent cotton into ice water, and press it gently against the eyes. Lean over the water drain out of the cotton, and the cotton will cling to the eyes.
Leave it there, and secure
it by pinning a dry towel around
